Huntsman Post - September 2014

The following is a historical representation of Huntsman Post Issues. Not all original issue content is still available online. Where content is available it is included on the pages following the email layout.

The air in Cache Valley has turned crisp, the Aggies are victorious on the gridiron, and our students are back on campus. Fall is here, and as we begin another school year focused as ever on our students, I also want to draw your attention to our great faculty, whose dedication for ensuring student success is the backbone of the Huntsman School.

This summer, Professor Mike Glauser, the director of our Clark Center for Entrepreneurship, rode a bike across the US, interviewing local entrepreneurs along the way. I think you'll find his journey, on the bike and in discovering the heart of entrepreneurship in our country, to be fascinating and informative.

Two other stories in this issue focus on our students, in this case, an entering freshman and a recent graduate. Students such as Chelsea Yoshikawa and Brooke Siler Roach represent the true brand of the Huntsman School, and inspire us every day to do better and to be better.
