The leaves have turned, Homecoming has come and gone, and we know the snow is coming. Fall is in full swing on campus. This month we highlight our students, the focus of all we do, and our faculty, whose deep engagement with our students is so critical to the success of the entire school.

The first story is about a recent graduate who saw the competitive advantage of the Huntsman School, applied himself, and now has an amazing career at Amazon. Our second story and video this month highlight top faculty who not only contribute in the classroom but also to thought leadership in their respective fields.

In the words of Management Information Systems Department Head Dr. David Olsen, these stories “are ones we hope to replicate many times over.”
