Whit's Message

Dear Students and Alumni:

During recent years this page has been used to emphasize our growth and expansion in the College. This emphasis has been justified because we have made significant strides in personnel, buildings, and research. Now the time has come to see how well we have matured in this growth--to analyze our educational, extension, and research programs, to ascertain whether the new growth and new demands have been reflected in our programs.

One of the significant changes made in 1963 was the adoption by the University of an improved "General Education" requirement for all students enrolled in the University. By this action all students graduated from the University must complete a minimum of 43 hours credit in general education. A minimum of 18 must be in the natural sciences. By this change we are hopeful that every graduate of the future will have had the opportunity to become much better prepared for a job in natural resource management in an increasingly complex society.

In the year 1962-63 for the first time in our history as a College we were manned with Extension Specialists in each department. Jack H. Berryman, Extension Wildlife Specialist, John D. Hunt, Extension Forester, and Jim Bowns, temporary Range Specialist now replaced by Karl G. Parker. This will help to insure that our research findings and our resource education responsibility will be more adequately carried throughout the state than ever before in our history.

In the area of research we are now equipped to tackle basic as well as applied research. The fishery laboratory, comprising 44 separate aquaria where temperature, air, mineral content, and other environmental conditions may be manipulated and controlled for basic research in fisheries is an important addition. Five environmental chambers now installed and equipped provide for precise instrumentation of various light, temperature, and humidity intensities to give a wide range of environmental conditions. These will permit precise study of plant and animal ecology. Our soils and nutrition laboratories are well equipped for basic research in these areas. Our roster of research projects now numbers 27, which indicates the maturity and broadening interest which the College is assuming.

The Department has undergone some personnel changes during the year. In late summer Dr. J. Alan Wagar came to the College as Leader of the first Cooperative Recreation Research Unit in the United States. Dr. Wagar received his Ph.D. from the University of Michigan.

We were fortunate in adding a new staff member at the beginning of fall quarter when Professor John D. Hunt was hired to teach a course in Forest Recreation, Fire Protection, the Dendrology courses, and as half-time Extension Forester.

In the Spring of the year, Dr. Helmuth Resch resigned to devote himself to research at the University of California. We were fortunate in replacing him with Professor Walter H. Johnson, who comes to us from the University of Michigan, with a Master's degree in Wood Technology.

Dr. T. W. Daniel is engaged in some basic research in tree physiology, Professor Ross Tocher is working on cooperative recreation research with the Intermountain Forest and Range Experiment Station. Dr. Frank Kearns is engaged in Pinyon-Juniper and outdoor recreation research. Professor Raymond Moore is running the Summer Camp and the College forest, in addition to his teaching responsibilities.

This spring we will graduate approximately 30 students, and an increasing number of our seniors are moving on for advanced work to help fill the need for research and teaching in the forestry profession.

Peace and Rest

1962 Junior Field Trip
By Fred Peck

From the speechless goodbyes to the most welcome return, the field trip was filled with both educational and pleasurable experiences. Enroute we visited such Forestry operations as Lucky Peak Nursery, Idaho City Experimental Forest, Timber Structures and McCormic & Baxter Creosoting in Portland, Stamm Tree Farm and the little Shake Mill in Vernonia, Weyerhaeuser Company in Longview, and Arcata, Cascade Head Experimental Forest in Otis, Simpson Redwood Company in Klamath, Pacific Lumber Company in Scotia, and U. S. Plywood Corporation at Redding.

A special "thanks" is due to Otto and Elsa Lindh for their very fine hospitality. They took the entire class in for the night, fed us both supper and breakfast. It was mighty good.

Other stops to remember are: losing three tire caps, one flat, night-life in Idaho City, Timber Line Lodge on Mt. Hood, the World's Fair, Sunday at Harris Beach, customs check of California, tour of the Redwood Forest, Lassen National Park, and last but not least, the long night at Elko, Nevada. The most appreciated stop was Logan, Utah, on June 8.

"Summer Camp in Brief"
by Floyd Newby

"Holy Smoke, is that where we have to sleep?" This was an almost universal expression among the arriving Summer Campers. However we did have the distinction of being the last ones to use the old CCC barracks because all that remains of our summer home is a few scatterings of charcoal.

Our distinctive student camp manager, Gregg Taylor, had the honor of being the first one lost on the air photo trek. It turned out that his faithful dog couldn't quite remember where or even in which direction camp lay. Peter also had a little trouble finding the right tree but he hesitates to admit it.

A notable void was felt in the "The Doc's" absence, but Dr. Box kept the boys pretty busy with his "plucked specimen" I D quizzes. The frantic search for typical specimens left little time for rattler hunting, but at least three bit the dust and one of these was graciously served for supper, much to the consternation of Mrs. McBride.

As usual, the intersectional rivalry led to some rather exciting "forester rules" volleyball and a couple of dandy water fights, in which section one generally came out on top. All in all the fellows enjoyed working and playing together, and no one was hurt except good old Bob Packer who succumbed to "forester rules" and squirrel holes with a badly sprained ankle.

I am sure no one will soon forget the march up Benchmark Hill, a swim in the icy waters of White Pine Lake, Dr. Kelker's "pellet counts", or the "tasty" sandwich and orange lunches of Forestry Summer Camp 1962.

Range is Improving

Range

The past year has seen completion of our first full year in the new building. For the first time we have adequate staff office space, student laboratories, research laboratories, and classrooms.

We are able in this space to expand services. We have held special Range shortcourses this year for the Bureau of Land Management staff, the Utah State Fish and Game personnel, and the American Institute of Land Appraisers.

Staff changes in the past year include the appointment of Jim Bob Grumbles to the post of Assistant Professor of Range Management as a full-time teacher, and Karl G. Parker as Range Extension Specialist. Karl replaces Dr. John Vallentine, who has moved to the Nebraska Extension Service. We are fortunate also to have assigned to our staff in Logan, Alvin T. Bleak, with the Agricultural Research Service, and Dean Doell, with the Utah Fish and Game Department. Both are doing full-time range research. Professor Phil Ogden has been on leave at Iowa State this year, finishing his Doctor's degree in Plant Physiology.

Enrollment in Range Management is high. We will graduate about 3 men with Doctor's degrees, 3 with Master's degrees, and 27 with Bachelor's degrees. Demand for men has never been so high, however, and there remains an acute shortage of trained people. If you know of good prospects, we would like to hear about them. Send us their names and we will do the rest.

Deffendol, Scotty -Price, Utah

Range Field Tour by Mel Bramley

In the fall of '62 some of the sun-burned, wind-beaten faces seen around the Forestry building belonged to senior Range students who had just completed their annual field tour.

Accompanied by Dr. Goodwin, the crew left the campus at seven A.M. September 14. The route was west from Logan to Strevell and across southern Idaho to LaGrande, Oregon, and the Starkey Experimental Range. From there it was back into Idaho and to McCall, where the boys stayed in the smoke-jumper's barracks. Steep slope logging and watershed management methods were observed. The second night there everyone was awakened at five o'clock A.M. to the sound of female voices. It seems that two girls entered the barracks in search of something they had lost, but became detained and almost stayed for breakfast.

From McCall the trip proceeded through the Stanley Basin and Redfish Lake, where the boys rushed to a forest fire only to find the garbage dump set afire by the local Ranger. Moving on, the stop at Sun Valley was interesting as were the BLM activities at Shoshone, the U. S. Sheep Experiment Station at Dubois, and the Indian lands at Fort Hall.

Thanks to Dr. Goodwin and an ambitious sergeant, the trip was a success.

Of the "Big Three" National Plant Identification Teams, Colorado State took first, Texas A&M second, and Utah State brought the third place plaque back to Logan. Considering the competition offered by the seven other teams, our team did very well, and they have well founded hopes of doing better in 1964.

Wildlife is Increasing

Wildlife

This past year saw the department grow by one member, staff-wise: Dr. Robert Vincent, Assistant Leader, Cooperative Fisheries Unit came to us from the University of Michigan in July. We lost him via the promotion route to Colorado State University in March. He will take up the position of Unit Leader there. His position of Assistant Unit Leader here has not been refilled.

The staff is continuing its emphasis on undergraduate and graduate training and research. The active graduate students now number 31, and they are involved in several phases of behavioral, population dynamics, wildlife, and fisheries research.

The undergraduate program has been liberalized in an effort to produce a graduate with a broader background in humanities and the expressive areas while still trying to maintain a good background in the technical aspects of wildlife or fisheries. We hope that this will result in a graduate who is more quickly adapted to the ever-shifting demands of the employment market.

Our undergraduate program has matured to a full complement of 133 men seeking the Bachelor of Science degree in either wildlife or fisheries.

We hope to continue our growth, and feel that we can do this best by enrolling good students sent to us by our Alumni.

BIG GAME FIELD TRIP

by Steve Capel

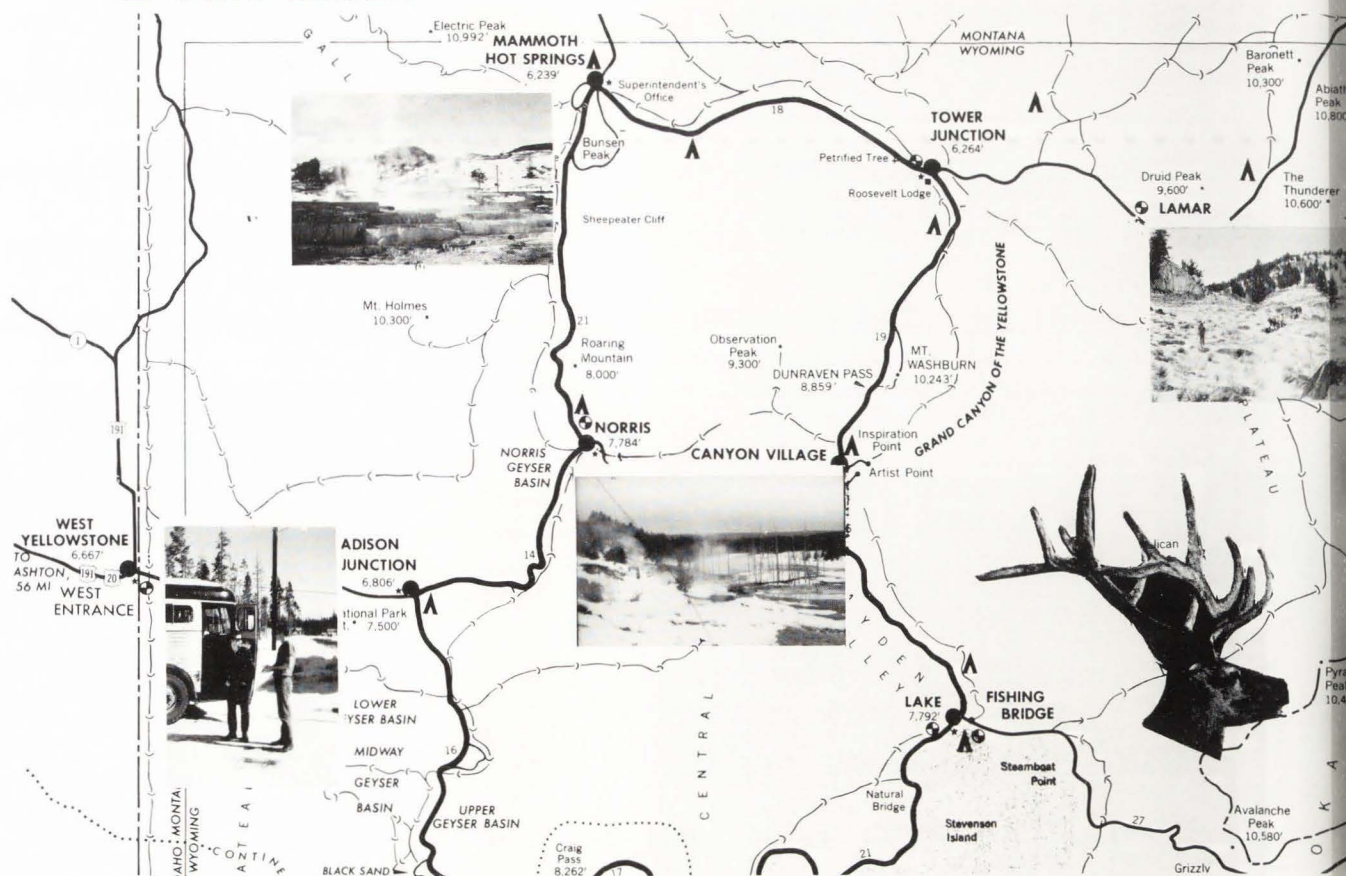

The big game class once again journeyed to Yellowstone to attend the lectures and guided tours of the National Park Service in conjunction with the elk problem and other game management in the park.

The first day was spent attending lectures and observing field collection techniques useful in elk management.

Due to uncontrollable socialization exhibited by the student of the 1962 big game class after a rough day of lectures and field work, this years' class of eaters was rushed to the Lamar Ranger Station for a sizzling steak dinner. The place that evening could best be described by picturing a small, smoke-filled room with chattering about the day's events interrupted occasionally by sharp remarks from the more serious-minded of the group--playing poker.

The next day the camera bugs got a workout when we toured the geyser areas and observed numerous mule deer, elk, antelope, and bighorn sheep. The afternoon was devoted to a field trip discussing range problems. A supper was prepared by the rangers' wives and "Sergeant" Garrett. The evening poker was momentarily delayed by a talk on bear management in the park.

On the return trip, the only noteworthy event was a gayly posed question to two passing young ladies, "Hey sweetie, ya got an older sister?"

Intramurals

Jerry Rehfeldt - Intramural Manager

The 1962-63 Intramural Team from the Forestry College seems to be doomed for second place in the composite team standings.

The Foresters started the campaign on the right foot by winning the football crown, despite the unimpressive record of one win and one loss. Later in the same quarter, Wayne Carlson and John Jenks led the Forester wrestlers to a second place finish. Both Wayne and John captured the title in their weight division. The final event of fall quarter was "A" league basketball, and the miserable showing (8th place) of the Foresters will not be commented upon.

Winter quarter was initiated with an equally disastrous "B" league basketball campaign (9th place), and this dropped the Foresters into fourth place in the overall standings. However, Skimeister Dick Kleinfelder and Bob Baker led a Foresters sweep of the Winter Carnival, and John Tallmadge and Jerry Horgesheimer paced the team to a second place finish in the swimming meet. As a result, winter quarter ended with the Foresters in first place in the league standings.

Spring quarter began with a 10th place finish in volleyball, and the softball team was first to be eliminated from the tournament. Although Dennis Black, John Tallmadge and Ken Mitchell won events in the track meet, it is quite improbable that the Foresters will regain first place, even though the golf tourney is yet to take place.

Conservation

Week

John Tallmadge
-Chairman of Conservation Week

Dick Estes-President of Forestry Club, Gov. Clyde of Utah, Marianne Holmgren-Daughter of Paul of 1962, John Tallmadge-Chairman of Conservation Week, Fred Peck-Off Campus Publicity.

BRIEF HISTORY OF CONSERVATION WEEK by John Tallmadge

In 1938 a small but enthusiastic group of Foresters held a dance honoring the legendary Paul Bunyon and his Blue Ox. This dance and various activities throughout the week were the beginning of what is now known as Conservation Week. The history of Conservation Week is spiced with the spirited competition between Engineers and Foresters, guarding vivacious young maidens from would-be kidnapers, occasional outbreaks of enthusiasm involving head shaving, chicken fights (with live chickens) and now and then an exchange of knuckle sandwiches.

The huge statue of Paul Bunyon (God rest his soul) provided the spirit for the Foresters and a challenge to the Engineers, as he was stolen and recaptured throughout the years. In 1942 exhibits emphasizing the need for conservation were set up and the noontime competition between the Engineers and the Foresters was initiated. A full week of activities was slated in 1950 with the primary purpose of exercising the esprit de corps of the Foresters and enlightening the public on conservation principles.

As a result of an official proclamation signed by the Governor in 1952, Conservation Week was observed throughout the state.

To provide a more consolidated program, the Conservation Week activities of 1963 were carried out by a composite effort of the three departments in the College of Forest, Range, and Wildlife Management. In the future, the administration of Conservation Week will be rotated among the three departments to encourage a more complete representation of the College's activities.

Although the policies of Conservation Week have evolved through the years to meet the demands of increased technology and interest in the field of resource management, the enthusiasm and spirit of the individual student still remains the necessary element for a successful week of activities.

Due to an illness, Senator Aspinall was unable to attend the Conservation Banquet as guest speaker. Milton Pearl, staff consultant on the house Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, delivered Senator Aspinall's speech.

The main theme of the speech was that the past history of our management policies on federal lands were to provide the most benefit to the most number of people. Mr. Pearl expanded this theme and stated its validity in present day management policies.

Your response to our letter this year further confirms our belief that our College of Forest, Range, and Wildlife Management Alumni are now scattered over most of North America. Although there was common training here at the College, we now find a wide divergence of jobs held by our graduates. We get reports of the excellent performance by you fellows, no matter what the job. Keep it up!

We are including news items from a selection of the 300+ comments which were received this year, and you will note that a complete up-to-date mimeographed directory is inserted for your convenience.

It has been a pleasure for the 1963 officers to serve you.
