PREFATORY NOTES

Our offices remain the same in number and under substantially the same management as last year.

Our managers are specialists in teachers' agency work ; some of them devoted to particular departments. The intelligent co-operation thus brought about by connected agencies and specialized work is greatly for the advantage of both teachers and employers.

Mr. O. F. Herrick, a recent graduate of Wesleyan University, who for the past few summers has had experience in the Boston office, has been since last August a member of our staff of Boston Managers.

The Chicago office has recently lost by death the services of Miss Blanche J. Southmayd. This vacancy will soon be filled.

Mr. E. C. Boynton, who has been working very successfully in the California territory, most of the time in the field, is now one of the regular managers of the San Francisco office.

As the preceding page shows, grade, high, and private schools engage a large part of our attention. Our college work is also large. We have recently been giving more attention to technical positions, especially in connection with our Boston office. These include the several branches of Engineering, Manual Training, Agriculture, and Domestic Science. Our technical work is growing rapidly ; we are coming to be recognized as specialists in this line, as in others ; and employers find it greatly to their advantage to consult those who know both requirements and teachers.

The influence of our Agency as an educational force is shown by the fact that its members have been placed by the Agency on the faculties of nearly two hundred colleges and universities, and in about five hundred representative secondary schools, including private schools, academies, and state normal schools. This is indicated statistically on the pages immediately following.

JOURNAL OF PEDAGOGY

Fifteen years ago The Journal of Pedagogy was undertaken in the belief that there was a place for a journal that would concern itself with the comprehensive discussion of educational subjects of vital interest to thoughtful and progressive teachers. Instead of seeking to make The Journal of Pedagogy popular by filling its pages with short, scrappy articles and schoolroom devices, the editor has tried to bring before the readers of the magazine full and thorough discussions of educational questions and it is safe to say that some of the most important contributions to pedagogical literature in this country have appeared in the Journal of Pedagogy during the past decade. In short, it is the aim of the magazine to offer from issue to issue a full and impartial account of the progress that is being made toward better things in educational thought and practice.

JOURNAL OF PEDAGOGY,
