10-6-2010

CPD Developmental Playground Looking Good

Center for Persons With Disabilities

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.usu.edu/cpd_blog

Recommended Citation
https://digitalcommons.usu.edu/cpd_blog/244

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the Center for Persons with Disabilities at DigitalCommons@USU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Blog Posts by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@USU. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@usu.edu.
The CPD’s Developmental Playground is looking wonderful these days.

It has been exciting to see it evolve from a plan drawn by Justin Wilson into “a spectacularly kid-friendly environment that encourages developmental play,” to quote Bryce Fifield. You can see the progress of the playground in a short video available on the CPD website.

As colorful and inviting as it looks today, it is still not completed. There are four elements that still need funded: the shade sails, a water table, a gizmo that will help kids learn about cause and effect, and a toy shed.

If you are interested in helping to complete the CPD’s Developmental Playground, you can make a donation to the playground and have a personalized marble tile featured on the outer wall of the playground.