Mayor Lorenzo Hansen,
Logan, Utah.

My dear Sir:

I take the liberty of calling your attention to a regulation of the National Irrigation Congress, in accordance with which the mayor of each city of a population of less than 25,000 has the privilege of appointing two delegates to attend the meeting of the Congress, and of suggesting the importance of having two able men appointed from Logan to attend the meeting to be held at Ogden Sept. 15 to 18, 1903. I shall confer with you regarding the appointment of two delegates from the College.

Having accepted the appointment as a member of the advisory committee on program, I suggested that Director Widtsoe be asked to prepare a paper on the subject of irrigation investigations, with a brief resume of what has been already accomplished by the Experiment Station, which suggestion was accepted and Director Widtsoe will prepare the paper.

Since Utah is practically in the center of a great arid region, and has taken the initiative in some of the most important irrigation work of the country, it seems to me to be especially important that our delegates to the next session of the Congress be men who are capable to take an active interest in the work of the Congress and creditably represent the College and City.

Very respectfully,

President.
