We shall need an instructor in Modern Languages at the Agricultural College of Utah next year, and I shall appreciate it if you will kindly send me the names of any persons whom you think would be likely to meet our requirements. Prof. Wilson, who is in charge of this work at present, has been granted a two years leave of absence; and, while the growth of the department may be such that there will be a permanent position for the instructor, our desire is to employ a substitute for two years, with no obligation on the part of the institution that he be employed after that time.

The work will consist of first and second year German and French, and probably some work in Latin. The salary would be from $800 to $1000. As we desire to complete our arrangements for next year's work as soon as possible, an early reply will be very much appreciated.

Very truly yours,
