College Will Conduct Flower Show Nov. 4

Twenty-one New Varieties of Chrysanthemums Will Be Displayed. Students Urged To Visit Show

The Utah Agricultural college will conduct a flower show at which 21 new varieties of chrysanthemums will be displayed from November 4 to 8th, inclusive, according to an announcement made by Dr. George H. Hill, dean of the school of agriculture.

The flower show will be conducted under the direction of Mr. Emil Hansen, landscape architect at the college and will be held in the college conservatories. Most of the varieties on display have been developed at the college. All of them are new to this section of the country.

In addition to the 21 new varieties to be on display, there will be 2 or 3 of the older standard varieties. The flowers at this time will be in full bloom and should present a wonderfully beautiful sight. Attendees will be constantly in charge to explain the various varieties on exhibit while plants will give the names of the different kinds of flowers.

Students are urged to visit the show at least two or three times during the five days that it is open.

Beta Delta Sorority Under Quarantine

All house members of the Beta Delta sorority have been quarantined for the last week because of the case of scarlet fever contracted by their house mother, Mrs. Jennie Wyatt. All but three of the girls have had touchups on the fever.

Last Wednesday noon those of the girls who were in school were withdrawn, but their quarantine continues today and they expect a return to classes immediately.

Botany Classes Take Hikes Up Logan Canyon

The botany classes went up Logan canyon on Friday and Saturday of last week for a field study. The first section left the campus at 8 o'clock Friday morning. Their first stop was at the new Logan city power plant. From there they ascended the hillside and studied and collected the different plants found.

Their next stop was at the boys camp. The mountains northwest of the camp were used for study. It was nearly dark when the class arrived back in the city.

The other section left the campus Saturday morning at 8 o'clock. The mountains several miles above the first camp were used for their study.

THE bobbed hair craze may worry the hair-pin makers but it should be a harvest for photographers who can see what's ahead. To a million or more women trying to prove that a "bob" is more artistic than long tresses—who can be of more service than the master photographer?
