LARGE NUMBER FLUNK ENGLISH EXAMINATION

BOULDER, Colo., Feb. 20.—Forty per cent of the upper classes who took the recent English examination for juniors and seniors failed, according to Prof. Francis Ramsey, chairman of the faculty committee. Seniors who failed will be given another opportunity to pass the examination some time during the spring quarter. As examination for sophomores to which upperclassmen will not be admitted is given March 7, No student will be given an A. B. degree until he shall have passed the test.

If seniors who failed in the recent test cannot arrange to take a course in freshman English or composition they will be forced to pursue the special course given by the extension division, for which a fee is charged. Prof. Ramsey, who presided at the election of suitable language courses as preparation for the test, said the faculty committee believed that too many failed the latest test. Prof. Ramsey admitted, however, that many who took the test were not especially interested in language and that a considerable number had failed the test at a previous time. The faculty hopes by providing the special course every Art student must pass the examination before graduation to emphasize the value of a degree in the study of English.

As a suggestion of what students may expect in the special course, Prof. Ramsey made the following comment: "Some of the spelling words which caused difficulty were: nickel, imported, seize, villain, Delaware, and lawsuit. Among the words to be memorized for pronunciation the following were: races, address, commerce, vulgar, and acclimate. The correction of errors in sentences was not always well done, yet the errors were so obvious that some students were able to correct nearly all. A few of the sentences for correction follow: Readers are invited to discuss these with their friends. There was less than twenty in the party. "I am crazy about tennis." "Were you calling James, Mary or 'L'?" She was very pleased with the dog. "I was right." "Yoursself and friends are invited." "Some like it was going to rain tomorrow." "There was a space of six feet between each chair." "I sat all the further I was able to."

Discourages Marriages During College Year

Should deter students who marry during the school year by discouraging the idea of marriage, Mrs. M. F. Perry, dean of women at the State College of Washington think so. Discouraging the idea of marriage for University that undergraduates marrying must leave and not return for a year, she says.

"I think it would be a wise ruling in all educational institutions," Students do not devote themselves to their studies when there is a wedding in the offing. It is apt to be to the morale of the student body, and the state of the individual involved."

When asked if such a ruling would not encourage secret marriages, she replied that she thought there would be no more than now. "I know of no secret marriages here, but almost everywhere there will be found some students now and then who think it a smart thing to do," she said. "I do not believe a ruling against student marriages would increase the number of foolishness in some sections of the country where the attitude of mind is more romantic than here where there is a general business-like attitude and frank course ship."

There usually is more or less chaperon, but the Washington young folks are pretty sensible. I do not think they need be seriously concerned about this line."

The graduate manager of student affairs, Harry Chambers, gave it as his opinion that a student is very foolish to marry until after his college course is completed, as premature marriage of that sort almost invariably weakens educational planning, preparation of both for their future and growing serious disapproval to parents who have sacrificed to give them an education."

The president of the Associated Students, Prof. W. H. of Tacoma, believes it resolves itself into a matter of character. A student who has set the character to go on to the end of the college year and finish what he began, telling the new responsibilities of married life, ought to be protected from his own foolishness by prohibitive restrictions."

"We all know the old saying that to live as cheaply as one, is to live as richly as one," says Chambers. "A student who is not likely to expect to continue to support her after marriage, if one disapproves of marrying in the middle of the education they are trying to give here, it is no more likely that the boys' parents will care to undertake the additional burden. It is hard enough to make a man to be a student through, without adding household expenses. The man who has character enough to be able to do this thing, has character enough to wait till he gets his alumnus."

Because the midyear class is limited to 125 in number the student is able to receive closer attention from the instructor than would be the case if he were one of the 250 entering in the Fall. The smaller classes lend themselves to freer discussion, which is of special advantage under the case method which is used in the Engineering School.

Applications for admission in the February class of 1925 are now being received by the Secretary of the School. According to previous tradition, the limit of 125 will soon be reached.

W. J. Merrill 1923 is now advising the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administrators. He is a member of the publicity committee of the Business School College.

SKATING PARTIES ARE SANCTIONED BY GROUP A. C. students on the campus, even though they are deprived of most popular winter sports enjoyed in middle western states, may still find another type of recreation to the diversions that fill their leisure hours. Roller skating presents a heart's delight.

Roller skating parties will be held Saturday nights at the skating rink north of town, following an arrangement entered by Mr. Robert Wyle, owner of the rink, and the committee on student interests. Student body tickets for the skating party will admit a student and a guest.

Fifty skaters at the rink have been reserved for the use of special organizations which may charter the rink for private use. Chaperones for these affairs will also be approved by the office of the dean of women.

Don't be Bats! A flapper from West Hillots Met some "perfectly charming" young fellow.

But when offered chaperonage, she exclaimed, "How insane! Don't you know the law frowns on such jobs?"

Local Hoopsters Split With Invading Y Quint In First Basketball Series of Season

Aggies And B. Y. U.
Battle To A Close Finish
Friday Night

Nielson, Saunders, and Henrie Do Brilliant
Work

The Utah Aggies began their hoop season last Friday with Brigham Young university by giving them one of the closest games they have had in two seasons, the score being 25 to 24.

The first half the Cougar had but a lone point and was practically lifeless throughout both halves but because of seemingly better able to locate the ball, the Aggies found themselves trailing behind three points.

The brilliant floor work of Nielson and defensive work of Saunders was the feature of the night. Nielson playing his first game of college basketball was working hard, and after playing as he was a veteran as far as experience was concerned. The work of Saunders in taking the ball off the opponent's backboard thereby lessening the chances of easy baskets for the foe was of the first order. Nielson, however, took some of the best shots of the game, and his defense was very effective throughout.

One of the largest crowds that have witnessed these local plays were present on this occasion and were never disappointed at a better contest for close score thriller.

The score:

Utah Aggies	G. T. F. P.
Nielson, Jr.	4 2 4
Henrie, Jr.	4 2 0 8
Baker, Jr.	2 0 0 4
Wendens	2 0 0 2

'Y' Defeated On Local Floor For First Time
In Period of Two Years

College Quintette
Trounces Saints 42-22
In Second Fry

For the first time covering a period of two years on the local floor the Brigham Young university went down to defeat at the hands of their old rivals, the Aggies, by a box score of 42 to 22. Score indication would lead one to believe that the Aggies were not forced in any way whatever to win but they were using practically every possible minute to the very best advantage with short napping and close guarding and thereby winning as they did.

Twitwell, the Cougar mentor, started four of his second string men along with Howard, the Y captain, and in the fourteen minutes they had to play they were unable to hold the Aggies away from the basket for any scoring. At this point the other four Y regulars were injured, but the Y team was able to ring during the last five minutes of the game with a single lone pitch by Stewart made a total score for the Aggies 42 to 22 for the first Aggie victory in 17 years.

The Y men started the second half along with Howard, the Y captain, to look as they would catch the Aggies but the continuation of like work by the Aggies and along with the commanding lead they already had, they were really not in any serious danger but just to make the score of the first half, Stewart and Ingersoll being able to locate the ring during the last five minutes of the game with a single lone pitch by Stewart made a total score for the Aggies 42 to 22 for the first Aggie victory in 17 years.

Henrie, all American intercollegiate center, seemed to play somewhat more intelligently in the second game, the strain of such a reputation being somewhat worn off by the second night along with the strain of playing college ball.

The best basketball schedule that the Aggies have had in years is the one that is booked for this playing season. It is one of the heaviest in the Rocky Mountain conference and will take the upmost effort to fulfill satisfactorily.

A game on the 25 will be played with some school not known to the basketball played in the two conferences.

A trip prior to this one will be made to Montana to engage the Montana State in a two game series. The games in Bozeman are scheduled for January 23 and 24. The two trips along with those with the U. of C. and the B. Y. U. will keep the Aggies at the top of the league for a long time.

HANDBALL MEDAL TOURNAMENT BEGINS

Three Medals Likely To Be Given To Winners of Single And Doubles Matches

Three medals will likely be awarded this year to men who prove themselves masters of their opponents in handball. Coach Nelson has expressed a desire to see a medal awarded to the winner of the singles tournament and also a medal to each of the winners of the doubles tournament.
Although it is going to be with his influence with President Peterson to have such awards made. The preliminary tournaments have been held to half the fact that there are about thirty men who are quite proficient at the game, and it is expected that whoever receives the honors in the minor sport will earn them thru hard work and consistent training.

Men who wish to enter the singles tournament should send the paper posted in the main hall. Those entering the doubles tournament should send the paper posted in the main hall. In pairs, one who can play handball should enter these tournaments. The hope is to have a contest the credit to the right one.
You may be the winner.

McCane, with Christensen and
"Bitch" Knowles with Bert Gar-
