NATIONAL FEDERATION CONDUCTS CHAPEL SURVEY

Reach Conclusion That Undergraduate Is Far From Being More Atheistic or Insuperable to Religion Today Than He Was Twenty-five Years Ago.

That the undergraduate for from being more atheistic or insuperable to religion today than he was 25 years ago, has now a clearer perception of the relation of religion to life and social service, is the most striking conclusion to be drawn from the nationwide survey of compulsory chapel, conducted by the National Student Federation of America. The investigation, the result of which embraced every state but two in the country, included the sending of questionnaires to the college presidents, and the undergraduate editors of the nation, as well as to a representative group of ministers who appear frequently before college assemblies of various types. Following is the report issued by H. C. Ross, Princeton 1925 chairman of the Federation Committee on compulsory chapel, conducted on compulsory chapel.

"The investigation on the subject of compulsory chapel carried out by the National Student Federation of America has been conducted through out in an entirely impartial spirit which has aimed rather to discover the facts of the situation than to foster a 'revolt at youth' or to assume an ultra-atheistic stand. The results of the survey, which were distributed to the number of 200 each to the college presidents and to the undergraduate editors of the country, in addition to 25 which were sent to representative college preachers. The relatively large response received from the college presidents seems to indicate, when compared with the scattering student replies, that the agitation among undergraduates on the subject of compulsory chapel is not widespread as one might have been led to believe.

"The questionnaire to the students was less definite than that to the presidents, and accordingly elicited a wide variety of reasons for and against the principle of compulsion. The value of assembly for the sake of college unity was clearly appreciated, as well as the practical difficulty of enforcing it in some of the smaller colleges. The students' own words were: 'no building on the campus is large enough to seat the entire student body. The student is not a member of other felt strongly that the institution and disapproval which they considered consistent of compulsion chapel tend to do justice'.

"The average undergraduate 'The day' was also expressed that chapel is not the best way to begin the day.

"In opposing the system of compulsion, the Reverend George Craig, of the University of Chicago, declared that he 'would rather speak to a hundred men who were there because they wanted to come, than to a hundred who were there because of the system'.

"The duties consist of performing, under supervision, assigned routine work in the laboratory, and in connection with the investigation of track crop diseases, and assisting in biochemical investigations on the nutrition of competitors will be rated on practical questions relative to the duties of the position, and their education, training, and experience.

Full information and application blanks may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C. or from any of the board of U. S. civil service examiners at the post office or customhouse in any city.

"Well," demanded Stan Christensen, "did you get any advertisement today?"

"Yes sir, I did," answered Cal Broadhead. "Two orders—one was 'Get out and the other 'Stay out.'"

"The Star," the principal of Phillips Agnew Academy, feels that the "better" hand that he has before him I have regularly spoken in colleges have represented those who were required to attend. Who is required to attend, the students are not in evidence, and it is certainly far from inspiring to the members of the faculty alone."

"Others were of the opinion that a 'voluntary' group consisted of those who least needed the measure, and that it was far more exciting to a speaker to talk to a compulsion. As far as the religion in terms of the present day, the students are not in the least alarmed for the future. Their re-also ranged from a belief that there had not been much change to the theory that a greater religious in the present study now under investigation than ever before.

"The representative officers of the religion from the college presidents make it worth while to dissect their sentiments more thoroughly, in view of the excellent picture which their replies afford of the moral and spiritual life of the students of the nation. In this connection, a point of view which received over seventy supporting votes was advanced as follows by President Farrand of Cornell: 'It is obvious that these years have witnessed in the world at large a decreasing interest in religion, but I am inclined to think that there has been, and, particularly in the last years, an increasing interest in the fundamental religious problems. . . . In that increasing interest the undergraduates of our colleges participate. This shows itself in an eagerness to discuss the underlying problems of religious faith and conduct, and in the reasonableness of serious less the applications of religion, less conviction usually entail.' President John Thomas of Rutgers states that there is 'a greater emphasis on the social applications of religious teaching,' while President Pills of Bowdoin is the only one to feel that the trend is away from service to world individualism.

"Numerous testimonials are available to the effect that students have at present less regard than formerly for creed and dogma. President Jay Lewis Wilbur of Leland Stanford University declares that there is less formalism, less tendency to accept dogma. An illustration of this is shown in the fact that students are less likely to be so much, according to President of the University of Michigan, who says 'The wish to live more Christianity through understanding and friendship, not to churches through fear and unthinking habit, has developed in humanity.'

Government Will Fill Vacancy in Bureau of Plant Industry

The United States Civil Service Commission announced open competitive examination for Assistant Scientific aid (plant industry). Applications for assistant scientific aid (plant industry) must be on file at Washington, D. C. not later than July 19. The date for assembling of competitors will be held on the admission cards sent applicants after the close of receipt of applications.

The examination is to fill a vacancy in the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. and vacancies in positions requiring similar qualifications.

The entrance salary is $1,500 a year, after the probationary period required by the civil service act and rules advancement in pay without material change in duties may be made to higher rates within one year for the grade, up to a maximum of $1,650 a year. Promotion to higher grades may be made in accordance with the civil service rules in vacancies occur.

The duties consist of performing, under supervision, assigned routine work in the laboratory, and in connection with the investigation of track crop diseases, and assisting in biochemical investigations on the nutrition of competitors will be rated on practical questions relative to the duties of the position, and their education, training, and experience.

Comes From Columbia

Mrs. Lois C. Mossman Highly Recommended; Miss Jones Assists.

Mrs. Lois C. Mossman, assistant professor of education in Teachers College, Columbia University, assisted by Miss Rose Jones, also of Teachers College, will offer courses in primary and elementary methods at the College National Summer School, according to President Edward C. Peterson.

Mrs. Mossman was selected by the college from a group of five national authorities in primary education recommended by Professor Kilpatrick of Columbia. Professor Kilpatrick characterized Mrs. Mossman as one of the outstanding teachers of children and as one particularly well trained in elementary education.

At the strong suggestion of the authorities, Teachers College, Miss Rose Jones was secured to assist Mrs. Mossman. In recommendation, the best prepared authority in the field of elementary education to be found in the entire country. Miss Jones is trained in the nursery school, the kindergarten and the elementary grades.

The addition of Mrs. Mossman and Miss Jones completes the National Summer School faculty for 1925. The group of visiting educators now includes the following: Dr. Elmer V. McCollum, professor of bio-chemistry, Johns Hopkins University; Dr. A. C. McLaughlin, professor of history, the Chicago University; Dr. E. A. Ross, professor of sociology, University of Wisconsin; Dr. James H. McCurdy, director of physical education, International Y. M. C. A., Springfield, Massachusetts and editor of the Physical Education Review; Dr. Lewis M. Terman, professor of psychology, Stanford University; President Elmer G. Mossman, assistant professor of education, Teachers College; and Dr. Rose Jones, director of Teachers College, Columbia.

In addition to the visiting faculty from outside the state, the following are expected to be members of the National Summer School faculty: Superintendent Oren Ryan, Logan City Schools; Superintendent C. H. Skidmore, Rex Elder School District; Charlotte Stewart, director of playgrounds, Salt Lake City; Chester Meyers, professor of public

Four Males To Graduate With Honors

Passed Requirements
Ritter, Richards, Warner and Blood Compose List.

According to an announcement from Dean West's office, four men will graduate with honors this year. The four are: Ritter, Richards, Warner and Blood.

Ritter, B. A. and S. with major in Botany; Lorenzo Richards, B. A. and S. with major in Agriculture; Warner, B. A. and S. with major in Animal Husbandry and H. Lorin Blood, Associate with major in Botany, complete the list.

The requirements call for an additional amount of work in the major field of specialization. The four men are the best students in the department and an average scholastic grade.

In addition it is noted that these four men are the best students yet to receive honors with graduation.

Thompson and Smetz To Give Thrilling Drop From Airplane Sunday

Tommy Thompson, aviator, and Art Smetz, parachute performer, have arranged to give an aerial exhibition in Logan next Sunday afternoon following church services, on a flying field to be selected west of Logan City. Smetz is the man who recently tried for the world's record drop from an airplane in Salt Lake City and his death during the jump over a thousand feet before cutting over his parachute, thrilled forty thousand people. Nearly every automobile owned in Salt Lake City went to the field to see this spectacular feat of wing walking high in the air.

Thompson and Smetz have arranged to be on the local field Sunday afternoon June 6, at 2 o'clock. The exhibition will have been made following demonstration of some of the most thrilling stunts known to aviation. This will be the best prepared exhibition and paraded that everyone will be given an opportunity to see the man jump from the plane and fall thru the air a long distance before he cuts loose his chute to insure a safe landing.

At about 4:30 p.m., at field near flowing well, 5 miles west of Logan, Automobiles take 2nd North Street, immediately North of Cache County Court house and go West on Highway that leads to Collinston Divide. Admission, Adults 25 cents; children 10 cents.

Speaking, Weber Normal College, Logan, B. A. and S. with major in Agriculture; Dr. E. A. Ross, professor of sociology, University of Wisconsin; Dr. James H. McCurdy, director of physical education, International Y. M. C. A., Springfield, Massachusetts and editor of the Physical Education Review; Dr. Lewis M. Terman, professor of psychology, Stanford University; President Elmer G. Bryan, of the University of Illinois; Dr. Robert Howard Griggs, lecturer and author of New York, formerly professor of education at Stanford University; Dr. E. W. Milikan, director of the Norman Bridge Laboratory of Physics, Pasadena; Dr. Charles F. Smith, in charge of work in scouting, Columbia University; Dr. E. Laurence Palmer, professor of rural education and land use, Mary Wood College of Danville, Chicago; Dr. John A. Whitton, specialist in irrigation and drainage, Utah State College; Mrs. L. Laetance Palmer, editor, Rural School Journal, Cornell University; Dean Shaler Hays, of the University of Chicago; Superintendent Mrs. Lois C. Mossman, assistant professor of education, Teachers College; and Dr. Rose Jones, director of Teachers College, Columbia.

The above named visiting faculty will be accompanied with fifty-five members of the resident faculty in forty departments over two hundred rooms in the dormitories. It is possible for teachers to meet all requirements for graduation in Utah and in western states at the National Summer School, and to meet the new requirements in rural and physical education. According to faculty rating, the residence requirements for both the bachelor's and master's degrees may be met by summer study. The National Summer School opens on Monday, June 14, Saturday, June 19, and has made opening registration day.

Schaub Wins Second Tennis Championship

Match Closely Contested

Gets Titus Medal By Winning

Over Louise Shepard

In Finals.

In one of the most hotly contested matches in the history of Women's Tennis at the College, Vera Schaub was the second consecutive champion and Titus medal when she defeated Louise Shepard on Saturday last by the score of 5-7, 7-5.

Miss Schaub displayed her real tennis prowess in the whole match, taking the offense at all times but the constancy of Miss Shepard allowed her to be the superior player at the vital moment which looked at one time as though she would win. As an example of her consistency, Miss Shepard had on the short end of a 5-8 set and had her opponent brought her to a draw at.

Miss Schaub will receive the Titus Medal given by Dr. Titus, a normal faculty member here.
