FOUNDER'S DAY

Founder's Day marks the successful close of 41 years of service performed by the Utah Agricultural College. Once again it is fitting for us to stop for a moment and consider both the past and the future, for today is our Alma Mater's birthday.

The U. A. C. was founded on March 8, 1888 and during its early years afforded grade school, high school, and college work to the ambitious and energetic men and women of this section. Every year since the U. A. C. was formally created some step forward has been taken. Additions to the scope of education offered here were made, better educators were secured, buildings were erected, and laboratories built and equipped in order that a greater service might be performed by this institution.

As time has gone on, growth has been consistent and steady, and always has our school labored toward the goal of performing the greatest possible service in the upbuilding and growth of the West. Our motto, "Labor is Life", has been ever before our eyes.

It is certainly appropriate, at this time, to honor those who have been instrumental in this progress and this development—the men and women who have labored for the betterment of our Institution. So we gather together today to celebrate Founder's Day and to honor the Alumni and others who have contributed to the growth and success of our Alma Mater.

LET'S HAVE CORRECT TIME

For some reason unknown to us the College bells ring from two to ten minutes off the correct time. Sometimes they ring too early; sometimes too late. This causes considerable inconvenience. One may leave home in the morning sufficiently early to reach school on time only to find he is late for class because the College time is incorrect. In one instance a professor closed the doors to eight late-comers on a morning of an examination. As a matter of fact the bells rang five minutes early, and the several who were excluded from class were early on time.

It should not be difficult to have the same time at College as is used elsewhere. Let Union Pacific time be the guide.

COMPENSATION FOR THE FAITHFUL

With the coming of the Spring Quarter with its gentle zephyrs, its elusive scents, and contagious "spring fever" the student is prone to relax from the steady grind of study to which he has been subjected during the previous part of the year. While, to the student, this course is a natural one, the professors are ardently opposed to such action, and consequently must invent a means to keep the student at his lessons. Since human nature is always human nature, be it in college, in the city, or on the farm, some compensation must be made to the student who resists the languid joy of idle hours and the vagaries of "spring fever." This compensation is fully made by the William Peterson Science Medal award. Perhaps no greater honor can come to a science student than to secure this medal, and to do so he will cheerfully forget the temptations of spring, and delve deep into his books.

SYMPATHY

Thru this column the Student body expresses its sympathy to the Rowland boys in the loss of their father and to the parents of Charles Webb who died last week of Spinal meningitis.

Students View Column

To the Editor of Student Life—

Dear Mr. Editor, and Readers of Student Life:

There has been some discussion recently concerning the name of our year-book, the Buzzer, and the advisability of changing the name. So far, I have been able to find only two reasons given for the making of the difficult alteration. They are, 1—The cacophonous nature of the word, Buzzer, and 2—The fact that the majority of students do not know why it should be called "Buzzer." Concerning the second of these reasons it may suffice to say that the probability is no matter what the name was, after it had been explained the first time, it would become traditionally unaltered. As for Buzzer is, and it is also the fact that the theme of the book this year is based on the life of the Bee, in connection with the school motto, "Labor is Life." Remember that every year we explain to new students what B. O. T. C. A. W. S. W. A. A. and K. K. stand for, so why not a word about our history book in place of changing the name.

And now we come to the question of just how the word sounds. Granted that I's and M's and N's may be more euphonious, is it worth sacrificing the appropriateness and tradition behind the name, for a more trite conception of syllables that could never mean so much. In the last class of titles we mention "The Tower," which altho it might be from any college or high school in the world, is from Detroit University. But the name "Cornhusker," we think of the prize-winning volume from Nebraska.

Among other books which we think are clever titles but not outstanding nor characteristic are "Debris," from Purdue; "The Sampler," from Stanford; "The Virgilia," from the University of Virginia; "Touchstone," from Hood College, Md.; "The Spectrum," from Indiana High School, Ind.; "Drift," from Butler University; "The Round-up," from Baylor University; "Hill-top," from Marquette University, Wis.; "The Redactor," from Boonergang, and so on into hundreds.

But the "Buzzer" may be classed among the following: "The Cactus," U. of Texas; "The Lilo," U. of Ill.; "The Jayhawker," Kansas; "Oxonian," Oxford College; "Cornhusker," U. of Neb.; "Somnole," U. of Florida; "Usonian," U. of Utah; and "The Stanford," U. of Stanford.

Two years ago the Cactus, from Texas, used a real cowboy theme, with the cactus and desert air motif. This year the "B" book is to use the story of the golden plates for a theme. This book has won a place four times in the national contest. Last year the Roman used an Indian theme. We mention these things only to show that the really worthwhile and prize-winning books choose meaningful and appropriate titles rather than pretty sounding ones.

We maintain that there is nothing more typically Utahn, placed on the Beehive State, than that which is reminiscent of bees, and that there is nothing more appropos for an agricultural college year-book than the bee, which is sym-

Library Magazines Again

Will the students who continue to mar magazines in the library kindly take time to justify in Student Life such actions? A late number of Scribner's Monthly was widely marked, partly with ink and a copy of another publication had three pieces cut or torn out and undoubtedly others are treated in the same way.

When an unknown reader shows his approval or disapproval of the sentiments expressed by making lines or notations on others let them copy the words and make an article for Student Life when the signature will identify the writer and set him in proper honor before his fellows.

If students could realize that the disrespect for and the damage done to library publications is not at all smart but is only "smart" and ignorant they might desist.

If this practice continues cannot the Student body devise some means of detecting the culprit and getting them to understand the folly of their act?

SUGGESTIONS

Professor J. W. Sanborn, first president of the Agricultural College of Utah is one of the broad-minded, progressive men of our land. Past eighty years of age he is strong and active and has lately recovered from an accident that was physically very severe and almost cost his life.

In a letter written in January accounting for his still being able to carry on, he says: "Restraint from the vices, including tea, coffee, rum, tobacco and their associates, plus active interest in the world as well as local affairs has kept me in good running form."

Professor Sanborn is not carried away by fads and fancies nor overcome by sentiment. What he says above is a careful, considerable statement of what life has taught him.

Has it any suggestions to you? In the Desert News of February 16th the full page advertisement of "This Is The Place" had an article by Mr. C. W. Pearson of which the closing paragraph was: "If our young men and young women of this generation would perpetuate the work of their fathers and mothers, they must be concerned less about personal comfort and more about individual endeavor; and less about basking in the sunshine and more about sweating under the lash of ambition to develop our yet untapped resources. It's the youth of today that must make Utah a better place tomorrow."

holic of our motto, placed on the school seal, surrounded by bee hives. For these reasons, we urge that the name of our annual remain "Buzzer."

1929 Editor.

Generating Brain Power

BRAIN power, not horsepower, is the chief operating requirement of the electrical industry.

This requirement must be continuously anticipated to provide leaders for the future. Accordingly, each year, more than 400 picked college graduates come to the General Electric Company for a post-graduate course in electrical science.

With a faculty including inventors and engineers of international distinction, something more than electrical knowledge is imparted to these young men. Here they also find inspiration which prepares them for leadership in this electrical age.

You will see this diagram on the powerful motors of an electric locomotive and in the convenience outlet where you plug in a floor lamp—always and everywhere it is a safe guide to electrical quality and dependability.

Due to agricultural reasons, it was necessary for Ned Ostler, Lorin Burgeyne, Eldon Hanson

sion the school for the preparation of the coming harvest campaign.

Audrey Bergeson, Delone Valentine, Trish Taylor and Lamar Lyman entertained recently at an informal dinner party at the Sorosia chapter house. Covers were laid for eight.

The Gamma Epsilon Chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha celebrated the sixtieth birthday of the U.
fraternity in the form of a banquet and dance at Hotel Eccles, March 1st. Chairman, George Bishop, Gordon Woods and Howard Bonnamert were in charge of the arrangements.

Sorosia sorority announces the final initiation of Ruth Bennett,

which Miss Griffin was toastmaster. Louise Sheppard, Thelma Johnson, and Ruth Bennett responded to the forty eight members were present.

The new members of Sorosia entertained the sorority at an informal dancing party last night at Hotel Eccles. About fifty couples were present

as a success. The new members

The candy recipes were given in code for all ingredients and corresponding letters were listed in the recipe along with the directions. Each group being given a different recipe added zest of competition for the most successful product. All present found it an interesting and novel way of making candy. Vera Martin, Polly

Allen, Edna Backman, Mildred Crockett and Mildred Kilham were very instructive talk prior to final initiations.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies those present enjoyed refreshments served by the new "oath takers". The kindness of Dr. Henderson in granting the club use of the institute building on this occasion is much appreciated.
On the last Sunday in February Miss Faye Pedersen gave a recital of piano music at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George W.
Thatcher. (This was the thirty second in their series of recitals gram was entirely composed of selections from the music of Grieg and in her playing Miss Pedersen showed rare qualities of technique and interpretation.

Grieg needs both and in choice selections Miss Pedersen showed tenderness and joy, yearning and brilliance in short infinite capacity for bringing out the romantic qualities of Grieg's music. In the long Ballade and Sonata she displayed flowers of memory and execution, remarkable in so young an artist. Miss Pedersen had the advantage of playing to a most appreciative audience made up largely of young college men and women. In fact the player in her Grieg devotion and remoteness looked like a Norwegian Mona very effective display in its locaadvantageously displayed. In addi-

the L. M. Winsor South American

pleasing aspect to the museum.
Perhaps one of the most pleas-

is the addition to the museum of
