SHERWOOD ANDERSON SAYS: GIVE YOUNGESTER A CHANCE

By Sherwood Anderson in Marion, Va., paper.

There has been a distinct change come over the modern world. Some years ago Mr. Theodore Dreiser published a book called, "Sister Carrie." It was suppressed as immoral but after some years was republished. It is a fine book but I don't feel it would strike anyone as immoral now. Mr. Mark Twain wrote a book before he died. It was a frank discussion of his beliefs about life. When he had written it it seemed to him so terrible that he was afraid to have it published. When he died the manuscript of the book was put away in a safe. It was to be published only after a hundred years had passed.

As a matter of fact it was published ten years after his death and shocked no one. In ten years the world has moved up with a great rush.

It is not a new world through change. Several of my own books that have, when published, been condemned as too frank, are accepted everywhere now. There is a great mistake commonly made by older people about the younger generation.

What that happened is that there is an extraordinary curiosity about life. The younger generation has got onto much of the bunk the older people talk.

The young man or woman does not expect the impossible from the father or mother. They do expect a little indulgence, an attempt at understanding. To try and give them that, to be as frank as we can about our own experiences with life, is about all we can do for them.

IN MEMORIAM

The death July that seemed to have attached itself to the College this winter has taken another toll. Dr. Herbert Pack was taken first. "Boots" Pearson next, and now DeForest Hawkins.

DeForest was enrolled as a freshman. He came from Nephth, Utah, was 20 years of age, and was a member of the Phi Kappa Alpha fraternity. His death resulted from an attack of pneumonia. He died in a local hospital Monday, February 3, 1930. The funeral was held in Nephth, a packed house turned out to pay their respects. The College was represented by P. V. Cardon, who spoke at the services, and the following students and fraternity brothers: Paul Grace, George Bishop, James McCune, Ned Ooster, and Carl Belliston.

Those who knew DeForest Hawkins speak very highly of him. The College and Student Life join in paying our respects to one of us who is so much with us. We wish to extend our sympathy to his parents and immediate family.

SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED BY MINING INDUSTRY TO COLLEGE STUDENTS

OF THE STATE

Attention is called to the advertisement appearing on this page of this issue of Student Life, concerning the scholarships which are being awarded by the mining companies of the state to college students of the state. As will be noted, the contest is open to members of all four classes.

It is sufficient interest is taken in these scholars, and certainly there should be, it is highly possible that the mining companies of the state will continue to give these awards and thus afford a large number of young men and women of the state not only the opportunity to be on the honor roll of competition, but of attending college as well.

As the closing date of the contest is April 1, no time is to be lost by those intending to enter the contest.

THOSE SWEET UNCIGARETTED WOMEN

The man was in his forties and had the personality of a stiff shirt. "Are there any more of those sweet, uncigaretted, unginned, unnecked young college ladies left?" he wanted to know. There was a number of people like him who were interested in knowing, he said.

Those who knew DeForest Hawkins speak very highly of him. The College and Student Life join in paying our respects to one of us who is so much with us. We wish to extend our sympathy to his parents and immediate family.

We think a drunk woman is disgusting, but we do like the human girl who is interested in life and sex. Maybe this will shock Mr. Stiff Shirt.

This morning the writer was talking to an old gentleman with a dried up face that resembled a piece of leather.

"You seventy," he said simply. "I intend to be alive after I'm eighty. But lately, I've been getting' sick often. Little ailments now and then. Just that old man's One's I begin breakin' down it has to be fixed often."

Which reminded me that I was packing around a machine that wasn't hitting on all cylinders. And so I pass this bit of conversation on to you maybe you have a couple of spark plugs that need cleaning, also.

This column is for the student. Any complaint or compliment is received here. Letters must be short and signed. Names withheld on request.

Say There!

Who says the Freshmen can't do anything? Last week under the direction of editor "Con" Harrison, they put out a paper worthy of the regular staff.

Flann and the other regular members of the Student Life staff, were right on hand to distribute a nice batch of compliments, as soon as the Freshmen issue showed up. The Freshmen went to thank Ronald Flann for the privilege of taking last week's paper. They have said to thank him for the pretty "comps" he gave them.

—J. L.

Allow us to suggest here that letters intended for publication in this column must carry the full name of the writer. However, initials will be printed if the writer desires it.

We have published harmless comment before, that has come from the pen of a student. D. Wishes his comment to appear in "Roses and Skunkweeds" will be kindly comply with this request.

Oh! Those Love Notes!

Flann—

Did you enjoy your vacation? The Freshmen put on a good one, didn't they? You had better look out or Con Harrison will be taking your job away from you.

Watch Out for the Be-Nos

Dear Editor—

The Be-No club is running down its apparent stock and plans to make this one of the biggest years in its history. Being guarded by the national convention to be held here this spring.

With a good supply of material in the new pledge the Be-Nos are determined to keep back to their former place as the "peppiest club on the campus."

Perhaps you noticed that the Be-No men put on a poppy stunt at the last basketball game, but that is not all they plan to do. They are planning on a variety of stunts, entertainment, and every game. To carry out this stunt they are planning on a quartet to warble melodious strains during the halves and that isn't all, just watch the papers for future announcements.—N. M.

Bashful Girl of Greece Wins Beauty Contest

Paris.—Miss Alice Epiphaniou, a beautiful 19-year-old Greek brunette, who was too modest to show the diamonds and pearls won the title of Miss Europe today against the beauties of 18 other European countries, and will compete at Rio de Janeiro for the crown of "Miss Universe."

"Miss Greece" was born in the Peloponnese region, famous for centuries as having produced the purest Greek types. Her father is a wealthy lawyer and indulged her in travel. She is able to speak Greek, English and French.

She told the judges today she swims "like a fish," rows and dances, believes some cosmetics are necessary and is "readily happy at the opportunity to match the European beauty judgment against the American."

GIRLS FORBIDDEN TO ENTER FRAT HOUSES

Utah State College prides itself on the few simple restrictions it imposes upon the freedom of its students. And justly so. However, there is one restriction that it met with disfavor by the majority of fraternity men. That is the ruling prohibiting girls from entering fraternity houses or other structures occupied by men except on the occasion of organized parties properly chaperoned.

But! We call that giving the fraternities a hearty kick in the pants.

We wonder if the morals of our college men are so low that a woman dare enter a frat house. Personally, we think not. We have noticed that when a woman has been with a crowd of men, especially fellows of college age, that the men have acted much more respectable than before.

We know of one man who, during the recent cold spell, was walking home with a girl friend. He had to take a certain article into his frat house. On account of the regulation, he was forced to leave the girl standing outside—and it was sixteen degrees below zero.

And another thing! According to the rule, a fellow can't even take his mother into his fraternity house to meet his friends, only on the occasion of an organized party, properly chaperoned.

MODERN ART AND RAZZBERRIES

The artists on the third floor have thrown away their stiff, conventional styles of painting and are groping for a more modern manner. Many people, failing to understand, tap their heads and perhaps laugh a little.

The world isn't standing still. It keeps changing. Probably art has changed with the horse. Perhaps art has developed new standards and ideas that we and I can't understand. It isn't the right thing for us to condemn this thing or that thing because we do not comprehend it. How can we be in a judge if we don't know anything about it? There's not much to be learned something the razzery when we don't know what's the matter with it.

CLAIRVOYANCE

Two passed. One saw only A broken flower. One stooped A leaf, with tenderness, A breath of God.

—Elizabeth Kuskins.

Trouble alone seems to find the newspaper spotlight wherever college students are concerned. Unless one would regard the incident of the "hottest" man at the University of Oregon as an amusing or admirable feat. One sophomore, it seems, with the thermometer hovering around the 15 degree line, won a bet of $13.35 from his fraternity brothers by diving off a diving board into the icy waters of the mill race near the campus. He was proclaimed the "hottest" man and was promptly given the money.

LAUGHTER

Berlin doctors find laughter helps hospital patients to get well. Comedies will be presented to make sick folks to be merry. A new practice, but not a new idea. Laughter has always been called healthful exercise. Psychologist James used to say that the emotion was brought on by the action rather than the action brought on by emotion. If you are low in spirits, and despite that fact whistle, and sing, you will feel the action rather than the action brought on by emotion. If you are low in spirits, and despite that fact whistle, and sing, you will feel the action rather than the action brought on by emotion. If you are low in spirits, and despite that fact whistle, and sing, you will feel the action rather than the action brought on by emotion.
