Bring a pillow to the game! only half of seats installed

The new basketball arena will hold nearly three times as many students as the old George Nelson Fieldhouse.

Reporting:

Pam Taylor
Managing Editor

"Hopefully, 2,500 of the 5,200 seats planned for students will be installed by the Ohio State game set for tomorrow night," reports George Tribble, ASUSU vice-president.

However, Tribble suggests that students bring pillows and blankets in case they are one of the students who will be sitting without a seat.

Flexible Arrangement

The seating arrangement in the new structure has been made flexible for the students. For certain games, such as the Ohio State, Utah, Weber, BYU and New Mexico games, where large crowds are expected, there will be additional seats given to students. This will be approximately 5,200 seats.

During the other games about 4,200 seats are allotted to the students.

The number of seats for the big games is about two and half times as many as was provided in the George Nelson Fieldhouse where students were given 2,200 seats.

Tribble offered several suggestions for students to use during the three games this week to help seating to be quick and with a minimum of problems.

Suggestions

He stated that there is now a sidewalk beside the physical education building which leads directly to the south door, the only door which students will be able to enter. Using this sidewalk, he said, will help keep the mud out of the building.

He also reminded students that because of the lack of parking spaces by the new building, it would be better if the students walked to the games rather than try to take their cars.

Student sections for the Ohio State game will be sections E-Q, and for the Utah game later this week, they will be sections F-R.

Studentbody cards will be needed for entrance to the game. Students are also asked to be careful while in the building because some of the facilities are not yet completed.

Buzzerfunds slashed

Staff of the 1970-71 Buzzer is working with financial restriction. The budget for the Buzzer was cut by $7,000. Most departments on campus have felt a shortage of funds this year.

The new Buzzers will cost students one dollar. This fee is to make up for the funds cut from their budget. Production cost of the books last year was $23,500. Funds allotted from ASUSU total $16,000 for this year's book.

Last year's Buzzer required a 50 cent reservation fee. This fee was to cover handling and mailing because the books were finished late. The fee for this year's fee is for the cost of the book itself.

Each Buzzer costs eight dollars. Most of the cost is covered by ASUSU funds which come from student activity fees. The additional dollar needed must be paid by students who want the Buzzers.

Soccer needs your help

Editor:

May I take advantage of the courtesy of your columns to draw the attention of your readers to the existence of another football team at Utah State University?

This team plays association football, sometimes referred to in this country as soccer, to distinguish it from the local sub-species.

The USU soccer team has just completed the first half of its current season program, with a 5-3 victory over BYU. This brings its record to 6-0, with 39 goals for and five against.

Association football is, of course, regarded as a minor sport at this university. The team is by no means unhappy with this situation: the moral support of regimented files of frenzied acolytes is not necessary to enjoyment of the sport: nor are half-time parades of legs, blotchy red and unattainable, thought compatible with the pleasant calm of a soccer game.

It used to be possible for USU students to watch, with appropriately disciplined appreciation, their winning football team in action on the pitch next to the High Rise dormitories. This is unfortunately no longer the venue of games; the turf on this pitch was removed, piece by piece, a fortnight ago, by the minions of the administration, and transported to an unknown destination. We should like formally to wish it the best of fortune in its new life, should it survive.

We were, provisionally, able to obtain at very short notice the use of a field east of the LDS dormitories. Our last two games were played there, and we are hoping to use it for the resumption of our program in the spring.

The object of this letter is two fold. First, we feel that there may be in the University some who, from previous infatuation or for the charm of novelty, would be interested in playing football. Any such person would be made more than welcome if he got in touch with Mike Odell at 752-1487.

Secondly, we should like to enlist the support, should it prove necessary, of public opinion for the continued survival of the team, with elementary requisites such as a pitch, in at least the modicum of peace.

Buzzer fee too much

Editor:

This nonsense of having to pay a one dollar reservation fee for the Buzzer is a bunch of malarky!

The Buzzer is paid out of student tuition at time of registration, and tack this silly reservation fee on to a student's ridiculous.

Last year it was 50 cents and was considered a fine. So to even it out, they added an additional fifty cents to last year's fee. I hoped students were foolish enough to pay

From what I understand, there were a number of books left over as I am sure will be the case again this year.

Why pay an extra dollar when the book is already geared for students? I ordered enough books so students don't have to worry about getting a book to remember their "good ol' school days" by.

Students have enough expenses to carry a worry about without adding another fee like the so-called "reservation fee."

I dare you to print this letter as I feel certain it will draw similar responses from other students.

Academic moratorium to Frisco

Editor:

The "academic moratorium" (Student Life, Nov. 25, page 4) was a complete success. The short vacation did wonders for the masses of volumes at Merrill.

But for those who had planned on thinking about finals, terms papers, and "scholarly things," San Francisco wasn't too bad anyway.

Of course, some people will bitch about anything, right Bob?

Students bleed for Buzzer

Among the attributes one hopefully learns through a college education is common sense. But evidently not.

The Buzzer staff was allotted $16,000 of student funds from ASUSU. But that's not enough in their eyes. They are scraping for more money, this time through a one dollar reservation fee for the yearbook. And if that's not enough, they're also peddling last year's Buzzer for 50 cents in the University Center.

How sad it is when a publication founded for students can't find some way to obtain additional funds without bleeding students for more money.

They might be so daring as to solicit excess revenue from a well used medium of income -- advertising. Maybe we are expecting too much in asking the Buzzer staff to solicit ad space in preference to bleeding students who have already given up $2 per head for the book through their activity fees.

What's another dollar between us fellow students, right Buzzer? After all, students might as well pay three dollars as two. They'll never miss it.

Incidentally, if you want your photograph in the yearbook it will cost you another $2.

Let's see now. That's $2 from activity fees, another dollar for the reservation fee and, oh yes, another $2 for a photograph. Add it up and you get 5 -- $3 of which is over and above the $2 taken from the lump sum paid at registration.

Any way you view the situation, the same dollar signs stick out. Too bad students must absorb the brunt of the Buzzer's financial ineptness.

What about the student who unwillingly donates his $2 through his activity fees, but becomes fed up with the additional charges. He's simply out that money with no recourse.

It is definitely time to survey the relevance of the yearbook on the modern day campus. Perhaps a public opinion survey should be administered to the student body to see the $16,000 funneled to the Buzzer should not be used elsewhere (rodeo team, soccer team), or reduce student fees two dollars per year.

It's your move, student government. You had better move fast so the same fiasco which took place with the Buzzer last year doesn't occur again. Or do you look forward to the staff peddling unclaimed $8 yearbooks again next year for 50 cents. Any way you figure it -- there is a lack of common sense on the business department of the yearbook.

Quebec issue to be debated

Young Socialist Alliance is sponsoring a discussion of the situation in Quebec, today at 1:30 p.m. in the Sunburst lounge.

Participants in the discussion will be Dr. William Lye of the USU History Department and Philip Courneyeur of the Ligue Socialiste Ouvrière (League for Socialist Action) in Quebec.

Lye from Canada

Dr. Lye is a Canadian citizen, although he considers himself a "westerner" because he has not been in Canada for many years. However, he is interested in Canadian politics and follows events as time allows.

He has expressed his opinion that the separatist movement in Quebec although resulting from real grievances is not the solution to the problems of the Quebecois.

Writes For Socialists

Courneyeur is a member of the Central Committee of the LSO and a writer for "La Lutte Ouvrière," a Quebec revolutionary socialist newspaper. He was arrested during the War Measures Act for illegal distribution of socialist election literature. He supports the separatist movement of the Quebecois.

Jobs opening in Washington for Applicants

Applications are now being solicited for trainee positions in Washington D.C. and in a large number of federal agencies throughout the United States. These jobs will be for sophomore and junior students in engineering, mathematics and the physical sciences during the summer.

The placement center is now receiving copies of most Federal Civil Service job announcements applicable to college level positions. Standard forms and cards required for application and tests are also available.

Announcements recently received include instructions for "Summer Jobs in Federal Agencies" and the "Federal Service Entrance Examinations." Various reference material concerning careers with the Federal government are on hand. If students or faculty members have questions about federal employment the Placement office may be able to help.

The best chance for employment is through immediate and early application. If interested, ask for information about announcement WAP 915 and No. 414 at the Placement office in the UC.

Gathering set by Dixie club

Dixie club, a recently formed Dixie College Alumni organization consisting of University students and local residents, is planning a reunion Dec. 4. The gathering is scheduled for 7 P.M. at the University of Utah East Institute Complex, South Chapel in Salt Lake City.

Former Dixie students presently attending Weber, BYU, U of U and USU are expected to participate along with resident non-student alumni.

Outlined as an informal "get together", the club hopes to make the reunion an annual event. The tentative program consists of an unstructured "gabfest" and game session, with refreshments and musical entertainment beginning at 9 P.M.

The party committee expects an attendance of 200-300 people. Approximately 100 former Dixieites are presently attending classes at Utah State.

Ag wrestlers to meet BYU, Idaho St. squad this week

Utah State's wrestling team swings into action this week when they travel to Idaho State University to meet the Bengals Thursday night. The Utah grapplers will return home Friday for the home meet inaugural against Brigham Young.

With football season out of the picture, Coach Bob Carlson will inherit heavyweight hopeful Wes Miller. Miller, a reserve center on the grid team, is only a sophomore and Carlson is beaming over the prospects of having Miller in the lineup Thursday.

Lindley Hurt

Freshman Chad Lindley, an early season hope to fill the 142-pound bracket, suffered a knee injury last week and will definitely not participate for two more weeks. The younger brother of co-captain Gary Lindley, Chad re-injured the same knee he had operated on last spring.

Theon Merrill, ironically Lindley's teammate in high school, will take over the 142 pound spot for the time being.

"Idaho State has two Junior College All-Americans, plus a wrestler who finished third in the nation last year," Carlson warned. "We are expecting a real tough go up there."

The match with BYU will be held in the New Assembly Center -- the team is moving in there to practice already.

Carlson also noted that the new mats for both matches and practice, have arrived and will be in use for the home opener. The new mats are exceptionally larger than the old cushions.

Probable Lineups

As of last week, the probable starting lineup for USU consisted of: Craig Brimhall at 118; Ken Coleman at 126; Gus Lindley at 134; Theon Merrill at 142; Sam Bessinger at 150; Lee Thompson at 158; Wayne Miner at 167; Wes Miller as the heavyweight.

Both the 177 and 190 pound classes are question marks, with

Jim Johnson, Bob Clements, Lou Leyba, Joe Corey, Randy Christensen and Ken Kaanegaard as distinct possibilities.

Cage team ready

Tryouts for USU's women's basketball team will be held November 30 and December 8 and 9. Miss Fern Gardner, supervisor for women's extramural sports, encourages anyone interested, to be at the fieldhouse at 6:00 p.m. on these nights.

From those trying out, approximately fifteen girls will be chosen to play on two teams representing Utah State at various sportsday at different colleges and universities.

In past extramural activity, the women's volleyball team recently returned from the Intermountain Volleyball tournament, held in Denver, Colorado. At this contest, USU's "B" team took first place, winning nine out of their ten games.

Louise Murch, a sophomore on this team, scored the most points for the Aggies, with forty-seven points earned throughout the tournament. Other members of this team include, Diane Clark, Bonnie Baird, Kaye Lynn Terry, Shelly Summers, Janell Marriott, Lois Elkington, and Janet Ryan.

At this same tournament, Utah State's "A" team took fifth place. Players on this team are, Brenda Merkley, Ann Allred, Faye Rex, Emily Call, Cherie Nielson, Susan Wilson, Margaret Nielson, and Leslie Dodd.

Ag-Buckeye debut: everyone ready

SUPER MARVIN ROBERTS is one of the top players in the country and will inaugurate his senior season tomorrow as Aggies play host to Big Ten's Buckeye.

Probable starting lineups

UTAH STATE AGGIES
Forward	Robert Lauriski	6-7	Soph.

Guard	Jim Clemons	6-3	Sr.

NATE WILLIAMS, USU's all-American candidate will open his second season on the Aggie hardwoods tomorrow against Ohio State.

Greg Hansen
Sports Editor

It was like waiting for Christmas, but for some 10,200 area basketball fans, Utah State will finally christen the new cage season tomorrow in the sparkling new Assembly Center.

Coach LaDell Andersen's Aggies, ranked in the top ten in numerous cage polls throughout the land, will have its cage arsenal on the floor at 8 p.m. to meet Big Ten's Ohio State Buckeyes before a sellout crowd.

The Brooklyn Bomber, Marvin Roberts, will spearhead the casaba charge for Utah State, although he'll receive an abundance of aid from junior star Nate Williams and sophomore cornerman Robert Lauriski.

Love May Get Call

The battle for starting pivot duties is over and sophomore Lafayette Love is the apparent winner. Although Coach LaDell Andersen has tabbed no certain lineup as yet, Love will probably start along with Roberts, Williams, Lauriski and letterman guard Jeff Tebbs.

The Big Ten Buckeyes have an all-American candidate of their own, 6-3 Jim Clemons who averaged 24.3 last winter. Clemons will be joined by two sophomores in the starting five, 6-11 Luke Witte and 6-1 playmaker Allan Hornyak.

Utah State will have a busy month of December, especially these first two weeks.

After tomorrow's Ohio State test, West Texas State comes to town on Wednesday, Utah's Redskins on Saturday and then Santa Barbara, Gonzaga and St. Francis next week.

The logjam of games may present a stamina problem to the Aggie starters but this is where the Utags plan to capitalize on most foes.

Andersen's bench is loaded with talent and experience. Junior letterman Ron Hatch (6-4) and Terry Wakefield (6-2), plus senior swingman Ed Epps (6-3) would have to be considered among the best 'bench-men' in the country. Add sophomores Walter Bees (6-9), Pat Cooley (6-3), Kenny Thompson (5-11), Bryan Pavlish (6-3) and Dave Andersen (6-6) and USU will have no worries when it dips to the bench.

Last year Utah State finished 22-7 and was among the eight finalists in the country -- tournament wise. Coaches Andersen and Dale Brown have labeled 70-71 as "potentially among the top five teams in the country," and those rumors about contending for a National Championship are all true!

Ramblers unveil cage talent vs. Wyoming JC five

Reporting:

Preston Petersen
Asst. Sports Editor

Following their outstanding performance against the varsity the USU freshmen open the regular season tomorrow night against Western Wyoming Junior College.

Before the varsity-freshmen game, this year's frosh squad looked weaker than the previous years squads. The frosh lack the big man that they have had in the past (Love, Bees) and it was thought that this would hurt their rebounding. Things looked different in the game however as the frosh held their own against the bigger varsity. Glen Hansen was the muscle on the boards as he wasn't afraid to let the varsity know he was there, Jim Boatwright, though not as stocky as Hansen, was great not only as a rebounder but as a shooter. Boatwright, a high school all-American, has a great jump shoot from the top of the key, an unusual trait for a big man.

In contrast to the varsity which is a forward-dominated team, the freshman are loaded with guards. Gary Erickson is the leading guard following the game. Known as a great shooter in high school, Erickson didn't disappoint the USU fans. Scoring ten points in his college debut, Erickson showed more control than he did in high school. He made great shots from almost impossible positions with great players on him. Imagine what he will do when he has freshmen quality opposition guarding him. Kent Baugh and Dan Palley seem to be the leading contenders for the other guard spot. Baugh with a year more experience at the Air Force seem to be the leading contenders for the other guard spot. Baugh with a year more experience at the Air Force Prep School has better defensive capabilities but lacks the offense that is needed. Palley on the other hand has good offense and good defense. Alfred is playing in the forward-guard category and is working hard to break into the starting line-up. Neal Mathews and Ronald Black are keeping the rest honest.

RON HATCH has waged an excellent fight for starting berth in practice and will be key Aggie performer in opener tomorrow.

Western Wyoming is a rather unknown team to most fans. One member of the squad is head coach LaDell Andersen's son.

Clint will be returning home to face former team mates and opponents. Kent Baugh, Clint Anderson and varsity player Robert Lauriski played together on the Logan High School team that took second place in the 69'.

Wyoming will have five lettermen returning and three games under their belt. Last Friday they played College of Eastern Utah.

What type of offense and defense they use will be a surprise to everyone, including the coaches. With most of the J.C. opponents what they run will be unknown until the tip-off.

With the extra game experience and the letterman Western Wyoming should be interesting.

Lafayette Love
May start at pivot
