Weather's icy, fishing's hot

Cisco make annual show

More than 300 anglers tried their luck at netting Bonneville cisco this weekend at Bear Lake. Many students have been taking advantage of this annual run. The spawn for these herring-like fish lasts for about one more week.

New law will require five-year degree prior to CPA exam

By TOM BRENNAN
staff writer

The Utah Board of Regents may not think accountants should have to go to school for five years, but the USU accounting department and some accounting students say it's a good idea.

A Utah law (Senate Bill 201), effective July 1, 1986, will require students to study for five years, attaining a master's in accounting before they can become certified public accountants. The present Utah law requires only a four-year business degree before taking the CPA exam.

The new five-year plan grew out of concern that there was an increasing number of CPAs in the state.

USU and the University of Utah are the only universities in the state with a five-year program. Weber State College and Southern Utah State are concerned they will lose their accounting departments, which are only four-year programs.

Arvo Van Alstyne, Board of Regents commissioner, said three proposals are heading toward the Utah Legislature that would reduce the law's impact on undergraduates.

The three different proposals that would amend SB 201 are:

1) Students with a bachelor's degree could take the CPA but would not be licensed until they had an additional 30 semester hours of study.

2) Students with a four-year bachelor's degree would be able to take the CPA and be licensed.

3) Students need only a two-year degree to take the CPA.

An example of what the undergraduate would need to meet requirements for the first proposal (30 semester hours) would include a bachelor's degree, three additional courses taken to prepare for the CPA exam, and spending an average of 10 hours per month in qualifying professional training.

Larzette G. Hale, department head of the USU School of Accountancy, said the new law requiring five years of study is a good idea because of the "technological explosion" that has entered the marketplace.

Hale said she thinks an accountant's service to the public is increased when the students have a more in-depth knowledge of accounting.

The fifth year, she said, would consist of courses on taxation, administrative systems, managerial accounting and financial audit.

Greg Burton, president of Beta Alpha Psi, the accounting fraternity, said, "There is confusion over the five-year requirement in the fraternity."

But Burton, a graduate student, said he believes the requirement gives the profession more integrity.

Burton also said that obtaining a master's degree helps considerably when taking the CPA exam. He said an accountant's chance of getting into a "Big Eight" firm (America's largest accounting firms) is increased.

A senior majoring in accounting from Utah County, who didn't want to be identified, said, "I don't think it is a good idea because Touche Ross (a 'Big Eight' firm) said it wasn't necessary. I found this out (from a representative of the firm) on career day down in Salt Lake."

The enrollment at USU accounting department is 500 students and only 42 are pursuing their master's. Though small, this figure is increasing. Last year there were 25, according to department officials.

There could be a number of reasons why this number is on the rise. For instance, a starting salary is $3,000 more for a master's degree than that of a bachelor's. A student is also awarded faster professional advancement and higher aggregate earnings. Master's degree students also have a higher success ratio of passing the CPA exam, according to Dennis Spackman, president of the Utah Association of CPAs.

Spackman said in 1980, the most recent statistics that he had, 20 percent of the Utah graduates who had only a bachelor's degree passed on the first attempt all four parts of the CPA exam. But master's degree holders had a 61.2 percent passing ratio.

Insurance not enough for Old Main

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Utah State University officials had expected insurance would cover all the repair costs left from a Dec. 19 fire at the Old Main Administration Building, but have learned damages were more extensive than previously thought.

USU President Stanford Cazier told the school's Institutional Council Saturday that workmen opening the building up had discovered structural defects that call for major adjustments in seismic, mechanical and electrical areas not covered by insurance.

Cazier told the council it had also been recommended that a sprinkler system be installed in portions of the building, which is nearly 100 years old.

"If we were to make these adjustments the building should serve the campus well into the 21st Century," he said.

Cazier said the problems were addressed at an emergency meeting of the Regents' capital facilities committee.

That panel recommended some $2 million in repair work be made a top funding priority.

"The governor has also given his endorsement and we've been told to proceed, although we may not get all of the money this year," Cazier said.

On another matter, the Institutional Council passed a resolution backing the Utah Education Reform Steering Committee call for $150 million in new funds for schools.

Slim chance for USU faculty wage increase

By LORI ANN EATON
staff writer

Utah State University appealed for an increase in faculty salaries to a Utah legislative committee but chances for an increase are slim and more teachers may be turning to other institutions, said USU's faculty senate chairman. "I'm sure there is no chance of the 6 percent increase (asked of the committee last week)," said Faculty Senate Chairman Ross Allen. "There will be some increase, though not enough to impact."

The Joint Higher Education Committee was given a three-page handout, by President Stanford Cazier, listing resignations of USU faculty members who have gone to other institutions or private business for increases, Allen said.

"We're losing a lot of people," he said. "The reasons are primarily financial."

Many faculty members have left for salary increases that double their own, reported the hand-out. Those increases range from $7,000 to $10,000.

A survey of faculty members also revealed that 37 percent would consider other employment if increases are not made, said Allen. Twenty-two percent said they have already begun to look elsewhere for work.

Of the $77.7 million budget requested by the Utah

Board of Regents, $2.7 million is wanted for salary and benefit increases. The legislative analyst's office has recommended USU receive nearly $67.6 million total with only $118,000 for employee benefits.

"The legislation said there will be no (salary) increases without a tax increase," said Allen. "No one wants more taxes, it's also an election year."

Last year 103 employees did receive raises due to changes of rank, but they included only 8 percent of the faculty, Allen said.

USU's budget has not kept up with increases in the Consumer Price Index (CPI), Cazier told the committee.

Utah State's salaries have lagged behind the CPI for the past seven years and USU's average is 11.6 percent below the average of its 12 comparative universities.

The problem of losing teachers is more complex than it seems, said Allen. When USU loses top researchers it loses both state and federal money that some faculty bring in.

"People don't realize that money comes from other places," he said. "We don't just run on tax money."

Cazier reported to the committee that 29 percent of USU's revenue is from competitive awards generated by faculty members.

USU also has a hard time hiring good professors to replace those who have left because of salary problems.

"We are the biggest employer in Cache Valley," said Allen. "People think we are spending their tax money. . . students buy gas, food, clothes in Logan."

USU has also had budget cuts in the middle of the year for the last four years. "The teachers aren't affected at that time because they have contracts," said Allen. "But later (after budget cuts), salary increases can't be made because money must go into what was cut before."

The Legislature's budget session will end at midnight Jan. 28.

Greeks plan to change image from partying to service

By PAUL MURPHY
staff writer

The Greek Council at USU is in an image-changing mode, according to the council's adviser, Randy Jensen.

Plagued for years with an image of being a social club dedicated to "massive beer drinking," the Greek Council is trying to change the reputation of fraternities and sororities on campus, Jensen said.

"My biggest challenge has been to change the image of the Greeks at Utah State," he said. "We are working very hard at trying to improve community and campus relations."

Jensen said the Greek Council is attempting to promote the positive aspects of the Greek system.

"Our main goal has been to promote scholarship and philanthropy," said Greek Council President Julie Brizzee. Brizzee said she is concerned the Greeks are known only as an excuse to party.

"The council is trying to do all they can, but we realize there is no way to change everyone's opinion of the Greeks in just nine months," she said.

Last year the council installed the "Order of Omega," a special organization comprised of outstanding Greeks. The purpose of the order is to help set higher goals and promote scholarship for the Greeks.

The council is preparing for the Greek Winter Carnival which will be held Feb. 1-4. On Feb. 3, the Greeks plan a tubing party for mentally-impaired children from the USU Children's House. A crew is also planning to shovel the walks for the elderly that same day.

Though the council has community projects planned, part of the group's time is spent planning for parties. One member of the council advised other members to file formal complaints against the police if Greeks are pulled over unjustly for driving under the influence.

The Greeks are required to keep the same rules and regulations as all other USU students. They are also required to keep the rules and by-laws of their national organization.

"The new policy in the state for alcohol has caused the Greeks concern," said Jensen, he added that they are trying to inform all Greeks how to stay within the limits of law.

In 1976 Phi Kappa Alpha had its charter suspended for illegal drug use, according to Jensen. In 1979 the fraternity was given its charter rights back.

No other suspensions have occurred since that time and the Greek Council, said Jensen, hopes to avoid such problems in the future as fraternities and sororities go from an image of partying to that of service.

Last chance to help a dying Utah higher ed

It seems Utah lawmakers are more concerned in the pseudo-cause of the starving deer than they are about the quality of education at USU.

The legislative analyst is recommending only $118,000 for USU employee benefits, yet the Legislature is considering a $172,000 appropriation for the deer, whose plight is already being served by the generosity of actors and pop singers.

Though minor, it's just an example of the lawmakers' continued failure to recognize the seriousness of the problems educators are facing.

A recent survey of USU professors showed that 51.9 percent feel they earn "substantially less" than their peers across the nation. That "feeling" is supported by facts. The average USU faculty salary is 11.6 percent below the average of 12 comparable universities.

Added to the low salaries is the low quality in programs and equipment the teachers have to work with. The survey, conducted by the USU chapter of the American Association of University Professors, reported that 77 percent of the USU faculty feel "some" or "substantial" impact on quality due to the limited operating budgets.

More disturbing is the 37 percent who said that if conditions do not change this year, they will consider actively seeking other employment. Twenty percent are already seeking employment while 4 percent are currently negotiating job offers.

The problem of "brain drain," losing teachers to industry or to other universities, is alive and real at this university. Within the past two or three years, about 30 faculty members have left USU for higher-paying jobs elsewhere. And brain drain is not unique at USU, but exists at all of Utah's nine institutions of higher learning.

In this last week of budgeting, the Legislature would do Utah's future a big favor by giving higher education the monetary boost it not only deserves but needs to survive.

Greater than the tread of mighty armies is an idea whose time has come.

Victor Hugo

Treat animals with care in cold weather

To the editor:

We all know how cold it's been these last few days. We've worn sweaters and heavy jackets and stayed inside as much as possible. Even with heavy wraps, most of us have noticed the cold seeping in after a few minutes. In general, it's not been pleasant to be outside.

I'm writing this on behalf of several dogs I have seen tied up outside of campus buildings. Dogs come with fur coats as standard equipment, but let's face it, even with a fur coat, none of us would like to stand outside in weather like this for any length of time. I personally see little difference between tying up a dog in these conditions and telling your mother or daughter or brother to stand in the same spot for a similar period of time. Perhaps the dog will be more patient, but it won't be any more comfortable just because it's a dog.

If you're a dog owner, please don't leave your pet tied up anywhere unless you'd be willing to stand in the same place for the same amount of time, dressed in jeans and a jacket (if your dog has a particularly heavy coat add long underwear). When it gets this cold, leave your dog at home, or at least someplace where it can get out of the open (a cardboard box if nothing else).

Spectator conduct during game 'bush'

To the editor:

Following the Weber State basketball game at the Spectrum on December 3, I received numerous phone calls and letters criticizing the conduct of our students during that game. It was reported to me, that several students expressed their displeasure by throwing objects on the playing floor. This type of behavior is not only dangerous to the players, but is also bush and ignorant. Furthermore, it can punish our team in the form of a technical foul.

Since I was out of town and unable to attend that game, I did not wish to evaluate the conduct of our student-crowd solely on hearsay or second-hand information. Therefore, I withheld my judgment until I had seen several additional home games, including the UNLV game of last Saturday night. I was simply appalled by the behavior of several of our students at the game. This type of behavior has no place at a Utah State athletic contest.

Many of our students act as though every foul called on our team is a bad call, and that certainly cannot be a fact.

Officials make both good and band decisions, just like the rest of us, but the don't favor either team, over the course of a ball game.

At any rate, the best way for fans to support their team is with their voices. You can cheer, yell and boo as loudly as you like, but let's not get the reputation of being bush-league, by throwing objects on the playing floor. Instead, show that you've got class. Support the Aggies by being loudly vocal. Let the players take care of the physical part of the game. We have a basketball team and coaches who have a great deal of class and character — please support them in the same manner.

BRUCE CARVALHO

Campus employee starts trend

Editor's note: Turnstyles is a weekly column in which a member of USU's faculty or staff is invited to express an opinion of his or her choice. Bruce K. Carvalho works in the Women's Center.

Aside from being the first male to work in USU's Women's Center, the hardest part of writing this article is that I don't wish to be seen as either a pro or con ERA supporter. I am merely a middle-of-the-road mortal pointing out some of the observations I have come across since I began work here last quarter.

Without any particular area to start out with, I will point out that it has been a very challenging position indeed, meeting with mixed reactions from friends, relatives, and women who use the center. I mean a male in the Women's Center! Come on, be serious!

Well, I am. And I try to treat my job as any other I have ever held. That is to work hard and be good at what I do. I feel that I have adapted quite well for one whose only previous typing skills were those used on the computer. I am now faced with daily, (hourly?), typing assignments, phone answering and all of the other duties required by your normal, every day, mild-mannered secretary.

Upon first entering the WC, I was taken a little aback, as I had never heard, nor hoped to hear of a Women's Center. But as I spoke with the center's director and graduate assistant, I began to feel a bit more comfortable with the situation I was about to jump into. I mean this was to be quite the change from fighting forest fires, or cruising a 70-acre selection thin.

I realize, of course, that all humans are exposed to the same sort of problems, but come on guys, give the gals a break. We all know this world, for the most part, caters primarily to the problems men experience, before attempting to solve those of women.

Fortunately for those women on their own and those who aren't for that matter, there are Women's Resource Centers across America with qualified personnel to assist them in utilizing the resources found in those centers. These WCs contain material pertaining to both males and females and the different situations we encounter in our daily lives.

The Women's Center Resource Library covers many topics including women and men in relationships, various aspects of employment, women in cinema and the arts, sexual harassment issues and family situations. All of these subjects are found in books (which can be checked out), magazines, newspapers, newsletters and pamphlets.

The Women's Center also gives several grants each quarter and offers several classes, concerts and conversations each quarter. Many people utilize these resources and attend the programs, men as well as women. It is nice to see a mixture.

And speaking of mixtures, consider USU itself. There are some 90 countries, as well as every state in the union represented here. The Women's Centers across the United States cater to women of every background, with no discrimination because of race, national origin, religion, color, age or handicap.

Since I started working here, I have seen women of nearly all of those categories approach the WC, as well as plenty of men. Many turn away not knowing what the center is all about.

Anyone interested in a harmonica player for their band now knows where to find me. I'll either be out on the town blowing my harps, or on the third floor of the Student Center.

Student aid offered; workshops available

Students who anticipate the need for student financial aid in academic year 1984-85 will want to circle this week on their calendar. The applications for scholarships and for campus-based aid programs such as Pell Grant, National Direct Student Loan (NDSL), Supplemental Grant/College Work Study (CWS) will be available to students either at special workshops or at the Financial Aids Office. The calendar for application pick-up is as follows:

Jan. 23 - Scholarship Review as an insert to the Statesman. Applications are available for scholarships the same day and any time thereafter in the Financial Aids Office. Deadline for scholarship applications is March 1.

Jan. 26, 27 and 30 - Special workshops at 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. in the Student Center Auditorium (theater) on Pell Grant, NDSL loans, SEOG grants and Work-Study. After the workshops, applications for these campus-based funds will be available at the Financial Aids Office.

The workshops will last 30 minutes and will cover the changes in the 1984-85 application, hints on how to get your application right the first time, how to avoid problems with your Pell Grant and many other valuable suggestions on how to make sure that your application does what you need it to do.

Guaranteed Student Loan applications are also available at the Financial Aids Office.

Grapplers fall short in two weekend matches

By LORI ANN EATON
sports writer

Bob Carlson is a winning coach with 171 wrestling wins, but his record of 62 losses seemed unstable as the Aggies were defeated by Oregon State, 32-8, and Weber State, 23-15, last weekend.

"I'm having a hard time losing," said Carlson, in his fifth year at USU. "It's killing me. 'We have too much youth. . . it's very frustrating.'"

USU was expected to show its strength in the lower weights at the first Aggie home match Friday, but OSU was stronger as it won the first three matches.

Jamie Wise (118) weakened the Aggie plan by pinning USU's Alfred Castro in 1:18. At 126, Walt Markes of OSU defeated Cordell Anderson, 10-3, and Cliff Berger (134) decisively Aggie Erik Strawn, 3-1.

"We beat them last year (23-18)," said Carlson. "They were looking for us."

Freshman Todd Steidley at 142 came back with USU points as he took down, released and took down Paul Hewes for a 16-4 decision. OSU's Scott Cardwell (150) took revenge for his teammate, defeating Tim Draper, 10-1.

Steve Ross was the only other U.S. victory as he took Marvin Seal at 138, 4-0. Ross's record is now 21-5.

OSU's Terry Jones (167) defeated Gard Van Antwerp, 11-1, and Pat Gibson at 177 pounds took Wes

Smith, 3-2.

USU gave the 190-pound win to Oregon with a forfeit. "We're crippled at 190," said Carlson. "There's so much pressure on the team when you know you'll give up six points before the match starts."

OSU ended the match as Jim Baumgardner, who normally wrestles at 190, decided heavyweight J.L. Coon, 2-1. "I didn't know they were going to use Baumgardner at heavyweight," Carlson said. "J.L.'s not working as hard as last year."

"We were cautious and timid," he said. "We have a lot of work to do. It's hard when you've got four freshmen and four sophomores starting."

After the defeats, frustration and roster juggling, the coach is looking for a new attack plan. "Nothing else could go wrong," he said.

The Aggies improved a little with four winners Saturdays, although the Wildcats won 23-15 at Ogden. Anderson (126) decisioned Brian Ricks, 9-2; Ross (158) beat Dave Peterson, 8-2; Smith (177) defeated Wildcat Gary Badden; and Coon pinned Cal Robinson in 1:47.

Wildcat winners included Terry Norman (118) over USU's Castro, 11-3, and Tony Wittick (134) over Eric Strawn, 5-4. David Landsky (142) defeated Steidley, 8-5; David Byron (150) beat Kerry Prince, 11-5, and Jay Windward decisively, Jim Bauwman, +2.

Aggies forget NMS with impressive win over LB State

LONG BEACH, Calif. — Coming off a tough overtime loss against New Mexico there was no guarantee that the Utah State basketball squad would be sharp in its afternoon game against Long Beach. Earlier in the season in a day game against Santa Barbara, also televised, the Aggies won the contest but it was not a pretty sight.

Against the 49ers, however, USU took to the courts with a vengeance and dropped Long Beach 94-69.

"It takes care of the emotional and psychological effects of the loss (to New Mexico State)," said USU coach Rod Tueller. "It is our best overall effort against a good team."

In its previous outing, LBS had performed magic with an upset over Fullerton State. The magic was gone when USU got to town. While the numbers might indicate the game was all offense, in fact half of the battle went to a defense which made 49er baskets few and far between.

The first half was inconclusive. The lead seesawed between the teams and the score was tied at every even point up to a 22-22 tie. There, with 6:20 left in the half, Ivan Verberckt hit a penalty shot to split the score.

Verberckt is a 6-11 center who saw limited playing time last season. This year he has emerged as a starter with the second-highest scoring total for Long Beach. Since Utah State has traditionally had trouble with big centers, Verberckt's play would certainly be a key in the game.

The leading 49er scorer is senior Joedy Gardner. The guard has been scoring nearly 20 points per game in PCAA play. In the first half against Utah State, Gardner totaled 12 points to keep Long Beach close.

Utah State held a 34-33 lead near the two-minute mark when the offense started to spark. Before the buzzer sounded the Aggies outscored Long Beach 8-2 and went in to the lockers on top 42-35. That halftime buzzer might as well have been a funeral bell for Long Beach.

"I told them to go out and play as if the score was 0-0," said Tueller about his halftime talk. His team did that and more.

The second half opened with a quick basket by Chris McMullin and two Utah State turnovers, one which lead to a basket by Gardner two minutes into the half. It was the last basket that the Long Beach star would score for nearly 15 minutes. He was shut off with only four points in the second half.

Equally barren in the second half was Verberckt. The center brought in seven points from the first period, five from the penalty line. That was also how he ended the game as Utah State's Greg Grant defended the 49er big man so well that he sat on the bench for much of the second half.

With Gardner off the mark and Verberkt off the floor, the rest off the half looked like an Aggie season highlights film. "It was a good overall action and everybody got a piece of it," said Tueller.

The entire Ag bench saw playing time with Jerome Wiley leading the pack with six points. All of the Ags scored except Joel Rotta.

After the game Tueller joked that he felt his bench ran the fast break better than the starters. Both Tann Tueller and Darrin Long scored on breaks. At one time that pair was joined on the floor by Wiley, Reid Newey and Rotta for perhaps the shortest lineup ever to take the floor.

However, it was the balanced play of the starters who got Utah State to that point. The Ags outscored Long Beach nearly 2-1 in the second half.

Vince Washington continued his excellent play, both with assists and points. "If they leave me out there and don't respect the shot I'm going to have to take it," said Washington. Long Beach didn't respect him and forced him to score 19 points, 6 of 9 from the field and 7 of 8 from the line.

McMullin worked both inside and outside, earning 16 points while Ron Ence, hampered by three early fouls, added 10 points. Add to those totals the scoring of Grant.

Gymnasts face two-time national champion Denver U

Ray Corn sets team scoring goal of 179, says improved performances needed to win

By CARL ELLEARD
sports writer

Aggie gymnastics coach Ray Corn accomplished his goals in last week's season opening win at Boise State. He was not completely satisfied with that win, however, and has raised his goals for tonight's meeting with Denver University.

"Our goals are to hit a 179, perform more difficult vaults and hit on our bar routines," Corn said. "We have to continue to perform very well on the beam if we are to remain competitive in a bid to nationals. Early in the season we will see some falls but we will improve."

Much of that improvement will come from freshmen of the Ag squad. "Now I know what to expect," said Julie Young. "In that first meet I didn't understand about the crowd, the gym setup, but it's like to be on the floor in the Spectrum."

Corn said he will need improved performances to defeat Denver, which won the Division II national championship for the last two years before moving into Division I this season.

"They have power in the all-around, consistency and balance with Karen Beer, Heather Earl, Dwyler and Heidi Sjordahl," Corn said. "Last year they got to us twice. We had a tune-up against Boise State but they've got more experience that we will have for another month."

Michelle Pohl-Hunger, who dominated the all-around last week, will be the Aggie's top card against Denver. Corn said, however, that it will take a team effort to win.

Young said that the team adds to individual performances. "In the clubs it was all individual," she said. "I didn't understand about team competition but it's so much better to have girls my own age. It pushes me a lot and I always want to get better."

Young also said the crowd pushes her on. "God, yes," she said. "I've never performed in front of such a large crowd. You perform a lot more like it but I'll have to get used to it."

More than 1,000 people saw the Ags down last week and Corn hopes for an even larger crowd for Denver. "We have a knowledgeable crowd but when you talk about home court advantage we have more students. All the girls are healthy and we are facing one of the tough teams in the country. It should be a great meet."

Competition will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Spectrum.

Grant hits 27 in Aggie rout

"I like the team concept," Grant said, "that's how we win." Grant throws as many assists as anyone else on the team. Against Long Beach, however, his contribution to the Ags included near complete control of the middle.

"I've got a little jumping ability," Grant said. "The main thing I've got is that I think I'm a little quicker than the other guys." Grant's talents led to a series of slam dunks and jump shots which translated into a career-high 27 points. Grant hit 10-of-13 from the field and was perfect at the line in seven attempts.

Utah State put together two good halves to down Long Beach and that play will have to continue if the Ags are going to be competitive in the PCAA in the upcoming weeks. Tueller has a week to prepare for next Saturday's contest at San Jose State. Following that game the Ags will return for a four-game home stand which includes Fullerton and Fresno State.

Allen's rushing, tenacious 'D' lead to Raiders' Bowl slaughter

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Marcus Allen rushed for a record 191 yards, including a 74-yard touchdown run, and the Los Angeles defense shut down Washington's John Riggins and Joe Theismann as the Raiders crushed the defending champion Redskins 38-9 Sunday in the most lopsided Super Bowl ever.

Understudied Derrick Jensen and Jack Squirek turned alert defensive plays into instant first-half touchdowns before Allen, a unanimous selection as the game's Most Valuable Player, broke loose in the second half and paced the Raiders to a Super Bowl record 38 points.

Allen picked up his yardage on 20 carries and broke the record of 166 yards set by Riggins in last year's 27-17 Washington victory over the Miami Dolphins.

Jensen, a reserve tight end and LA's special teams captain, blocked Jeff Hayes' punt and fell on it in the end zone for a touchdown 4:52 into the game. Squirek, a backup linebacker, intercepted Theismann's screen pass and burst 5 yards for a score just seven seconds before halftime.

Between those scores, Jim Plunkett passed 12 yards to Cliff Branch for a second-period touchdown and Allen applied the coup de grace in the third quarter with two touchdowns — running 5 and a Super Bowl record 74 yards to put the Raiders safely in command for their third Super Bowl triumph.

The Redskins had been 3-point favorites to win their second successive Super Bowl — but by holding Riggins to 64 yards and Washington's only touchdown on a 1-yard dive in the third period, the Raiders became the only team besides the Pittsburgh Steelers to win more than two. The Steelers won four times in the 1970s.

Three plays served to propel the Raiders to this victory over a team which, at 14-2 was the best in the National Football League during the regular season — Squirek's interception, Allen's big run and, between them, a defensive stand that stopped Riggins on fourth-and-one at the LA 26 late in the third quarter. If that wasn't enough, the defense also blocked a Washington extra-point attempt and forced a Theismann fumble that ended a Redskins threat in the fourth period.

The Redskins never were really in the game. Riggins' run typified the Redskins' frustration on this day.

With the Raiders holding a 14-3 lead, Ray Guy's 27-yard punt buried the Redskins at their 12-yard line with 12 seconds remaining in the first half. Theismann brought his team to the line with three receivers split wide to the right, apparently ready to try for a bomb.

Instead, he only looked to his right, then turned to his left, where Joe Washington was a step outside defensive end Lyle Alzado. Theismann lofted the ball toward his all-purpose back but Squirek, sweeping to his right, stepped between them, grabbed the ball and was in the end zone.

The Raiders' bench erupted, coach Tom Flores grinned widely while his players danced around. On the other sideline, Washington coach Joe Gibbs muttered what for him must have been an expletive at what had become a 21-3 halftime deficit.

Riggins and Allen-traded touchdowns in the third period and the Redskins, now down 28-9, were driving, hoping to close the gap. Less than a minute remained when the momentum turned.

A year ago, on a fourth-and-one against Miami, Riggins broke loose on a sweep to the left for 43 yards and the decisive touchdown. On Sunday, with Washington facing fourth-and-one at the LA 26, the Raiders were waiting for him. Linebacker Rod Martin pursued the sweep to the left and stacked up Riggins for no gain.

On the very next play, with 12 seconds remaining in the period, the Raiders ended any chance the Redskins had.

On first down, Plunkett handed off to Allen, who began sweeping to his left, only to find strong safety Ken Coffey in his way. Allen reversed his field, cutting back to the right, then suddenly cut upfield through a mammoth hole in the middle of the line and was gone on his 74-yard scoring run.

'Skin's Moseley: 'Everything turned sour'

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — When Washington faced fourth-and-one in the fourth quarter of the 1983 Super Bowl, John Riggins turned it into a 43-yard touchdown run that sent the underdog Redskins to a 27-17 win over the Miami Dolphins.

On Sunday, in a similar fourth-and-one against the Los Angeles Raiders in Super Bowl XVIII, favored Washington, Riggins failed.

On the next play, Marcus Allen of the Raiders raced for a record 74-yard touchdown that gave Los Angeles a 35-9 lead and the Raiders went on to a 38-9 victory, the most lopsided in Super Bowl history.

"Everything turned sour right from the beginning," said Washington kicker Mark

Moseley, who missed a field goal and had an extra point blocked, continuing his slump that began in the National Football Conference championship game against the San Francisco 49ers when he missed four field goal attempts. "It started when they blocked Jeff's punt and we just seemed to go downhill from there."

The Redskins, who reached the Super Bowl while compiling a 16-2 record and had the National Football League in the plus-minus turnover ratio, fell victim to their own mistakes Sunday.

"Let's give all the credit to the Raiders. They played a great, great game," said Redskins guard Russ Grimm.

New detective film 'Gorky Park' a thriller

By DON PORTER
staff writer

Detective thrillers have a tendency to be set in exotic environs. The more intriguing and picturesque regions and cities of Northern Africa, Central America, Europe and the South Pacific have been popular with filmmakers and authors intent on placing their characters in foreign settings. Such was the case with Martin Cruz Smith's Gorky Park, an extremely successful detective novel concerning a cop in Moscow and his relentless search for clues concerning three grisly murders in one of the city's parks.

The film adaption of Smith's novel doesn't remain altogether faithful to his plot lines, but is very satisfying in and of itself. Gorky Park is much like any detective story set in the U.S. The principle characters must deal with internal politics between the local militia and the KGB (American law enforcers deal with local, state and federal jurisdictional conflicts); their own shortcomings (it seems homicide detectives are certain to be chain smokers, heavy drinkers and possessors of insolent attitudes); and, we cannot forget, there is always The Woman — as in "the woman who steals the hardened heart of the emotionless detective."

In Gorky Park the emotionless detective is militia investigator Arkady Renko, a very good cop whose father was a general in the military. William Hurt (Altered States, Eyewitness, The Big Chill) portrays Renko, a man who is disgusted by the political nature of his job and wants nothing more than to be able to perform his duties without interference by the KGB.

This film reinforces quite a few stereotypes Americans have about Russian society. Basically, that their institutions are susceptible to corruption even at the highest levels, their public servants are a group of drunken sods and that many of these people want to leave their country for freedom in the West. But after listening to the dialogue between characters in this film you come away with a nagging suspicion that it's possible the Russian peoples view Americans in much the same way.

The focus of this belief in Western decay is John Osborne (Lee Marvin), an American fur trader who turns out to be one of the slimmest wheeler-dealers in his business. Osborne's dealings in the purchase of sable pelts (the Soviet Union, we are told, holds a monopoly on the sable trade — the animals simply don't inhabit any other part of the globe) are accomplished with the same tenacity and devotion usually associated with someone like G. Gordon Liddy — in other words, he'll do anything in order to assure that his side doesn't lose.

But the conflict between Renko and Osborne, due to Osborne's apparent connection with the three dead and mutilated bodies found in the park, is further complicated by the appearance of a New York City detective, William Kirwill (Bryan Dennehy), and his desire to become involved in the case. Dennehy's Kirwill is obviously in physical contrast to Hurt's Renko, but the two characters have a meeting in the middle when it comes to their philosophy on the performance of their jobs. Their eventual comradery is one of the film's highlights. Dennehy is just about the best thing in Gorky, considering the time he spends on screen. He's a solid actor who deserves more and expanded parts.

Another surprise rising out of this movie is Joanna Pacula, a Polish actress who came to the U.S. just prior to the imposition of martial law in that country. She is very good as Irina Asanova, the semi-dissident young woman who shares an impossible love with Renko and has a great desire to flee the oppressiveness of the Soviet Union. Poland's loss is definitely our gain.

Gorky Park is a good movie. It's not a terrific "whodunnit," but it has an interesting setting, a fine cast and the cat and mouse game between Renko and Osborne is very entertaining. And it's nice to see Lee Marvin back in a decent role for a change.

Annual program with Glenn Miller planned

By DEBORAH MORRIS
staff writer

"Every year, 'Brigadoon-like,' the Sunburst Club mystically reappears," says Jan Benson an advisor to Student Productions at USU.

"The Sunburst Club is a re-creation of an elegant 1940's supper club, complete with Glenn Miller and stars such as Frank Sinatra, Gene Kelly and the Andrews Sisters," he said.

Benson said the Sunburst Club began in 1976 in honor of Darralene Lewis, a USU student from Tremonton Utah. Lewis was hit by a train and killed on May 14, 1975 while on a USO tour in Germany. Benson said the Sunburst Club was formed the following year and presented the Darralene Lewis Show with the theme of Glenn Miller.

"The Sunburst Club is a 1940's fantasy tour. It features an elegant dinner, dancing to an 18 piece swing band led by "Glenn Miller" and a spectacular floor show," said Derek Furch, director of Entertainment Services. "We encourage everyone to dress in 1940's costume to help them experience the magic of the evening."

Auditions for many of the 46 performers were held at the beginning of fall quarter and rehearsals began in October," Furch said. "This year we have 10 singers, 18 Sunburst Dancers who are choreographed by Irene Bates director of the Aggiettes, and an 18 piece swing band led by Jan Benson who portrays Glenn Miller," he said.

Benson said portraying Glenn Miller is a difficult but satisfying experience.

"Miller is representative of the 1940's era," Benson said.

"He was a quiet man but a strict perfectionist and people of all ages loved him."

Benson said Glenn Miller was particularly popular because of his USO tours to the American servicemen overseas during World War II. Miller was killed in a plane crash on a USO tour in 1944.

He said songs like Chatanooga Choo-Choo were Miller's trademark and his was the first group to sell more than one million records.

"Last year we tried something new. We tried to change the Sunburst Club theme to Rio de Janeiro," said Furch.

"But this year by popular demand, we are returning to our Glenn Miller theme. Year after year people still love Glenn Miller and the glitz, elegance and excitement of the 1940's," he said.

This year's production entitled A Night With the Stars is co-sponsored by Student Productions and the Taggart Student Center. It opens on Jan. 26 at 7 p.m. in the Taggart Student Center ballroom and will run through Feb. 4. Tickets are $14 and $15. Students can obtain a $3 discount.

Traditional Irish musicians, The Chieftains, who have performed for millions, will visit USU Wednesday night.

Irish musicians to visit campus

From their local pubs in Ireland, where they began their career, to Carnegie Hall, the Royal Albert Hall in London, the Villa Milanese in Rome, the Sydney Opera House and the Edinburgh Festival, The Chieftains are hailed as the greatest exponents of traditional Irish music.

Their music and artistry have also resulted in collaborations with Eric Clapton, Van Morrison and James Galway; a performance for the Pope in Dublin, before a record crowd of more than one million people; and an appearance on NBC's Saturday Night Live.

They have also scored several feature films and won an Oscar for their score for Barry Lyndon in 1976.

The Chieftains have released 12 albums to date. They have also recorded with Mike Oldfield and Art Garfunkel, and have a track on the latest solo album of Eagles drummer Don Henley.

The group will appear at USU Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Kent Concert Hall. Students can obtain free tickets at the USU ticket office.

Lennon's widow still mourning

LONDON (AP) — Yoko Ono says she still hasn't come to terms with the 1980 murder of her husband, ex-Beatle John Lennon, and the couple's young son has stopped talking about his father to avoid upsetting her.

"I thought I would be the last person to be like this, meaning after three years still feeling very involved, still feeling that I can't get over the whole experience," Ono said in a British Broadcasting Corp. radio interview.

Ono said she has tried to blot out the memory of Dec. 8, 1980, when her husband was fatally shot outside their

New York apartment, by working hard. But she said, "Part of me is really not relaxed at all. I still haven't resolved with John's death."

The hour-long program, taped in her Tokyo apartment, included an interview with their eight-year-old son, Sean, and the first broadcast of tracks from a new album, Milk and Honey. The album contains previously unreleased songs Lennon recorded shortly before his death and six of her own recordings.

While Sean initially "went through some really hard times" after his father's death, he has adapted "beautifully" but has stopped discussing Lennon's murder, she said.

"In the beginning, he used to feel that I was too gentle about how I expressed myself about Chapman," she said.

Mark David Chapman is serving a 20-year-to-life sentence at New York's Attica State Prison for Lennon's murder.

Scholarship Review

Message from the Director

The scholarship program at Utah State University is dedicated to recognizing and rewarding students who have demonstrated outstanding performance as scholars, or in some realm of leadership or talent. These leaders of tomorrow, by reason of their intellect, creativity and unique qualifications, have forged exceptional records in the past and are expected to provide the required direction for our society and the cultures of the world in the coming ages.

The scholarships listed herein come from many interested and generous sources. Private donors, corporations, professional associations, faculty and staff, alumni, friends of education and the University itself have all contributed. Each of these donors share in the desire to provide recognition and motivation for the recipients in the hope that they will recompense these contributions to their education as the beneficial architects of our tomorrows.

It is our privilege to work and associate with both these outstanding students and the special groups of donors in this program and to represent the University in assisting all to obtain their deserved goals.

Richard E. Michaud
Director
Financial Aids Office

Who Can Apply

The scholarships listed are those consistently available to Utah State University students. They are awarded through the services of the Financial Aids Office and through the various colleges and academic departments. Some scholarships are awarded without restriction, while others may be limited by certain majors or colleges, class standing, minimum grade point, past accomplishments, financial need or special qualifications established by the donor.

College students, including transfer students, are evaluated on the basis of their college cumulative grade point averages. Students entering from high school are judged on the basis of their high school grade point averages and scores from the American College Test (ACT). The ACT test should be taken by at least November of their senior year. A four point scale is used to determine the cumulative GPA.

How to Apply

Students who wish to apply for any of the available scholarships may obtain a scholarship application from the Financial Aids Office in Rm 21 of Old Main or by calling (801) 750-1021, or by writing Scholarship Office, Financial Aids Office, UMC 18, Utah State University, Logan, Utah, 84322. High school students in Utah, southern Idaho, and Western Wyoming can obtain applications at their counselor's office. The deadline for applications for the 1984-85 academic year is March 1, 1984. Applications can be photocopied.

Selection Process

Selection of the recipients is made by committees from the various departments or by a central committee for the general scholarships. Notification of recipients is scheduled to be accomplished before the respective recipient's school is dismissed in the spring. Qualified applicants who are not selected in the first cycle are put on a reconsideration list for a later cycle which is generally performed in mid fall quarter.

• Application deadline is March 1
