

2002

How Can I Fix A Plentiful Holiday Meal On A Lean Budget?

Georgia Lauritzen

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.usu.edu/extension_histall

 Part of the Food Science Commons

Warning: The information in this series may be obsolete. It is presented here for historical purposes only. For the most up to date information please visit The Utah State University Cooperative Extension Office

Recommended Citation

Lauritzen, Georgia, "How Can I Fix A Plentiful Holiday Meal On A Lean Budget?" (2002). All Archived Publications. Paper 317.
http://digitalcommons.usu.edu/extension_histall/317

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Archived USU Extension Publications at DigitalCommons@USU. It has been accepted for inclusion in All Archived Publications by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@USU. For more information, please contact dylan.burns@usu.edu.

A weekly question/answer column

How Can I Fix A Plentiful Holiday Meal
On A Lean Budget?

Georgia Lauritzen answers:*

Even though you may be underfunded this time of year, it doesn't mean you have to be underfed. It is possible to fix appetizing, balanced meals on a lean budget.

- Turkey is a great buy during the holiday season if you are feeding a large group of people. A small family can dine on chicken priced at about 79 cents to $1.20 a pound.
- Potatoes are a healthy, inexpensive food to keep in stock. They can add variety to your table with many options for preparation such as boiling, baking, mashing and au gratin. Powdered milk can be used in preparing the potatoes and is less expensive than milk from a carton.
- Vegetables, such as squash, are nutritious and inexpensive and make a good holiday dish.
- Pumpkins and apples are also plentiful and inexpensive this time of year and can be used in holiday desserts.
- Homemade rolls are not expensive but do take time. Another option is to purchase frozen dough. Watch for sales, since it can be frozen for up to several months. Stale or day-old bread mixed with celery and nuts makes a tasty dressing.

* Georgia Lauritzen is Utah State University Extension Nutrition Specialist