Credit bureaus collect information on consumer bill-paying habits and employment. Companies obtain your credit report when you apply for a credit card or loan. You have a right to know what is on your credit report and to correct mistakes. You can order your own credit report.

Send For Your Credit Report

The Fair Credit Reporting Act gives everyone the right to see what information is contained in their credit report. The local credit bureau has this information and you can obtain a copy for a small fee (usually $8). You just need to fill out a form (see attached), and send proof of address such as a copy of a credit card billing statement, a utility bill, or a drivers' licence. It is very important to correct any wrong information because it may cause you to get turned down for credit, employment, or insurance. If you have any questions or have trouble understanding your credit report contact the credit bureau, they are required to assist you.

Correct Any Mistakes On Your Credit Report

It is important to look over your credit report carefully. If you find any outdated or inaccurate information you have a right to have it removed from your report.

◆ Outdated Information: Negative credit information - such as late payments, delinquent accounts, and repossessions - will remain on your credit report for up to seven years. Bankruptcy will be on your report for ten years. Any information that is outdated can be removed.

◆ Inaccurate Information From A Creditor: Sometimes mistakes do happen. A creditor could have reported that you were late on a payment when you were not. Clear up the problem with the creditor first. Request that they notify all the credit bureaus they report to about the correction. Then make sure the correction has been made.

◆ Mix-ups: Sometimes information about another person, who has a similar name as you, will appear on your credit report. Request that the credit bureau investigate and correct any mix-up. If a dispute is not resolved to your satisfaction, you may write a 100 words or less statement, that will be added to your credit report, and explain the why you think the record is inaccurate. You may also write a statement that will be placed in your permanent file at the credit bureau.

Improve Your Credit Rating

You make your own credit rating, not credit bureaus or creditors. Only you can make improvements to your credit rating. To do this, you should pay your bills on time and in the right amount every month. There is no quick fix for a poor credit rating. You cannot erase negative information such as late payments, non-payments, repossessions, liens, or bankruptcy if the information is accurate. Be aware of credit repair scams that make claims such as: “Bad Credit? No Credit? No Problem!” No company can remove accurate information from your credit report. These companies take your money and do nothing to improve your credit report. If you need help repaying your creditors, managing your debt, or creating a personal budget, contact a nonprofit organization that provide free or low-cost help to consumers. To have a block put on your credit report call 800-353-0809. This only allows agencies you have authorized to view your credit report and will reduce unwanted credit solicitation.
