

The POTATO

~ The potato is one of the most economical, as well as nutritious, foods we have at our fingertips. Besides always being a good buy and only pennies per serving they are very versatile. They can be baked, boiled, fried, mashed, broiled, and chipped. They can be served fairly plain or extremely fancy. Of course the more you do to them or manufacturers do to them - the more they cost and the more fat and calories as well as other nutrients will change.

SWEET POTATO

The Healthiest Vegetable Around

The Nutrition Action Health Letter rated 58 vegetables by adding up the percentages of USRDA for six nutrients (Vitamins A and C, folate, iron, copper, and calcium), plus fiber. Sweet Potatoes topped the list with a whopping 582 points; its nearest competitor, a raw carrot came in at 434. The Center for Science in the Public Interest rated the relative nutritional value of common vegetables and once again, the Sweet Potato came out on top with a score of 184, compared with a similarly prepared white potato which scored only 83 points.

Did you know that...

- One cup of cooked Sweet Potatoes provides 30 mg (50,000 IU) of beta carotene (Vitamin A). It would take 23 cups of broccoli to provide the same amount.
- Sweet Potatoes have four times the US Recommended Daily Allowance (USRDA) for beta-carotene when eaten with the skin on.
- Sweet Potatoes are a great source of vitamin E, and are virtually fat-free, which makes them a real Vitamin E standout. Most Vitamin E rich foods, such as vegetable oils, nuts and avocados, contain large amounts of fat. Sweet Potatoes (1 cup) provides 100% of the USRDA for Vitamin E, without the unwanted fat.
- Sweet Potatoes provide many other essential nutrients including Vitamin B6, potassium and iron.
- Sweet Potatoes are a good source of dietary fiber which helps to promote a healthy digestive tract. They even have more fiber than oatmeal.
- Sweet Potatoes are virtually fat-free, cholesterol-free and very low in sodium. A medium Sweet Potato has just 118 calories.
